TARDIEU'S PLAN FOR DISCUSSION WINS IN LONDON

Offers Compromise Between Global Tonnage and Category Basis.

U. S. DELEGATES SIFT FRENCH PROPOSALS

British to Fight Some Points Contained in New Document.

NAVAL PARLEY WILL FACE ISSUE TUESDAY

Acceptance May Pave Way for Conduct of All Talk About Limitation.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Jan. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, so far the driving force of the London Naval Conference, now holds the field with a detailed proposal for a compromise between the global tonnage method of limiting navies, favored by France, and the system of limitation by categories preferred by other powers, notably Great Britain.

This proposal, evolved in the hope of removing one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the conference, after being accepted this morning as a basis for discussion by all delegations at a meeting of the conference resolved into a committee of the whole, was outlined in a communique issued tonight.

No figures are mentioned in the French scheme. The spaces for them are left blank and so far no power has put forward figures to any other power.

Acceptance of the French scheme as a basis for discussion does not mean that the other four powers represented here agree to it. Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams at this morning's committee meeting declined to commit himself until the scheme has been studied in detail by the American delegation.

Concession by France.

The British are prepared to fight some of the French points, but nevertheless the fact that some concessions have already been made by the French and that the text now issued was discussed beforehand with the other powers is indicated by removal from the preamble of the clause mentioning the League of Nations, and by a statement in the transfer clause in the French scheme that powers desiring to alter their tonnage within categories shall notify not the league, as in the original French draft, but the high contracting parties to the prospective treaty.

The French plan follows closely details already cabled to America, but

Four 10,000-Ton Ships Canceled by Britain

London, Feb. 1 (Saturday).—The naval correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes today:

"It has been ascertained that the two cruisers whose cancellation was referred to in the House of Commons on Wednesday by Mr. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, are not the two (Surrey and Northumberland) of the 1928-29 program whose suspension was decided on some time ago. They are two 10,000-ton cruisers of the 1929-30 program. This makes, in all, four cruisers of this class which have been canceled."

The British Admiralty's formal announcement on Monday of cancelation of two cruisers specifically named the Surrey and Northumberland.

Dirigible Cuts Loose Glider at 3,000 Feet

Los Angeles Experiment Proves Successful at Lakehurst.

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The upper atmosphere of the naval air station here, where many a history-making chapter of the air has been written in recent times, was the scene of another aerial epic today.

The Los Angeles, pride of the Navy lighter-than-air craft, again played one of the principal parts in the new epic of the air. Rising to a height of 3,000 feet above the snow-covered field, it suddenly assumed to those who stood watching below the shape of a monstrous egg from some far off planet and hatched a huge bird with outstretched wings, which immediately started cutting capers around the field, circling a dozen times above the giant hangar and finally landing on the snow without as much as a peep or a flutter.

It turned out, to those who had not been told in advance, that it was the first successful experiment of a glider detaching itself from a dirigible in full flight. Lieut. Ralph S. Barnaby, only licensed glider pilot of the United States Navy, had stepped out from the dirigible as it was flying at 3,000 feet, climbed down a rope ladder, stepped into the glider, somebody inside manipulated something which released him from the mother ship, and the gliding expert started flying around like a bird just let out of a cage.

It all happened at 11:25 this morning. An hour before, the Los Angeles, accompanied by its younger brood of blimps and metalclad airships, the J-3, J-4 and ZMC-2, left the ground at the sharp command of "up-ship" and circled the field to gain altitude. The ground wind was about eight knots. Visibility was good.

The glider was suspended from a cross-bar, close to the Los Angeles keel amidships. The releasing mech-

HALF OF QUOTA NOT YET MET IN CHEST EFFORT

Workers Are Exhorted by Leaders to Spur Labors.

ENDEAVORS TO DATE REALIZE $885,442.94

Solicitation in Federal Bureaus Banned by Hoover.

CAMPAIGN WILL END ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Daily Average of $180,000 Necessary if Goal Is to Be Realized.

With less than half of its quota of $1,786,737.07 contributed, the Community Chest workers were urged to greater effort by their leaders at a report meeting yesterday afternoon in the Mayflower Hotel. At the conclusion of the meeting a total of $885,442.94 had been contributed, leaving about $901,000 in pledges to be obtained before the end of the drive Thursday night.

Reports from all units yesterday totaled $63,133.50. John Poole, campaign chairman, admonished the workers that less than half of the budget had been contributed. In order to reach the goal it will be necessary, he said, that at each of the five remaining report meetings, a daily average of $180,000 must be maintained.

2,720 Contributions Noted.

The metropolitan unit, special gifts committee and region five, which embraces the colored population of the city, showed a total of 2,720 contributions, aggregating the $63,133.50.

William W. Everett, past president of the Rotary, asked the 950 workers to redouble their efforts in order to achieve their aim.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, declared that complaints had been received from workers that employes of Government departments have refused to contribute, saying that they were going to contribute through their departments.

No Government Solicitation.

Mr. Street explained that there would be no solicitation in the Government departments this year. A request to solicit the Government departments, made to President Hoover, had educed the reply that while Mr. Hoover had indorsed the chest and all its ideals, he could not consent to solicitation at the Government offices.

Mollie and Virginia, from the Washington Home for Foundlings, were guests of honor for the day. They are three and four years old, respectively, and sat grave through the meeting, but seemed to give the workers renewed enthusiasm.

Newbold Noyes, chairman of the special gifts committee, reported 21 new contributions totaling $6,950, making 1,049 contributions in all received by this committee for a total of $776,422.

Colored Unit Report.

Mr. Street reported that region five, which is the colored unit, had received $702 in contributions for the day.

Merritt O. Chance, chairman of the Metropolitan Unit, called on his regional chairmen to have their division chairmen report for the day. The total for the Metropolitan Unit was $55,481 obtained as follows: Arthur Adelman, division 1, $339; Lee D. Latimer, division 2, $1,146; Graham H. Powell, division 3, $2,591.50; Dion S. Birney, division 4, $361.50; G. B. Craighill, division 6, $3,209; F. A. Birgfeld, division 7, $4,241.50; W. C. Hanson, division 8, $12,818.25; Leon S. Ulman, division 9, $1,371.75; Oscar Leonard reporting for J. Leo Kolb, division 10, $835; John W. Hardell,

GIRL REVEALS GRAFT SHIELD OF LIQUOR RING

City and County Officers in Oklahoma Shared Money, She Avers.

32 PERSONS ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH PLOT

Organization Headed by Sheriff and Attorney, Witness States.

WYOMING CONSPIRACY HEARING COLLAPSES

Grand Jury Declines to Indict Guardsmen in the Buffalo Killing.

Oklahoma City, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Ruth Morgan May, 23, comely sweetheart of an oil field deputy sheriff, now dead, testified in Federal court here today that on numerous occasions she had seen money collected for protection of bootlegging joints delivered to Randall Pitman, Pottawatomie County attorney, and Frank Fox, former sheriff of the county.

The woman told the jury that Oscar Motley, the deputy with whom she lived, was in charge of collections from liquor dispensaries in Earlsboro, boom oil town, and the oil fields in its vicinity. Records purporting to show collections and disbursements of protection money, which the witness said she kept, in antagonism to the wishes of F[illegible] were turned over to the Government by her and introduced in evidence.

The Government charges, in its trial of 32 persons charged with a conspiracy against the national prohibition laws, that Fox and Pitman were leaders of a ring that dominated the liquor traffic of the county.

Girl Has Pleaded Guilty.

The witness is one of the 102 persons indicted by the Government, and one of the 25 who pleaded guilty at the outset of the trial.

She was present at a conversation in the Keys drug store at Earlsboro in 1926 she testified, with a man named Motley, who, she said was Fox's uncle; another man and J. A. "Duce" Barron, when Barron observed that opportunities for money making compared with those presented by the heyday of oil prosperity in the Healdton and Wilson fields. Motley agreed, she said, and with him she went to Tecumseh, the county seat, for a conference with Sheriff Fox. She was not present at the interview, she said.

After the organization of the liquor "Line," as the organization was known, she personally "cut" the collections into there equal parts, she said. One-third went to the "county," or Fox and Pitman; one-third to the "city," or Herman Knappenberger, mayor, and Marion Fuller, chief of police of Earlsboro, and the remaining one-third to Motley, from whom she received a portion.

Ousted Governor Waits.

Henry S. Johnston, who was impeached and removed from the governor's office last March, was in the Federal Building today awaiting his turn to be called as a Government witness.

Two State investigations into liquor-law enforcement conditions in Pottawatomie and Seminole counties were conducted during Johnson's term of office, and it was expected he would testify as to representations of law violations made to him by residents of the District and the results of the investigations.

Grace, a dapper young man of 30, in his lengthy examination, told of his activities as a collector for "the ring."

He said he received $25 a week for his services, although he had collect-

HOOVER'S IRE STIRRED BY FORT'S DEFENSE OF HOME BREW MORALITY

'Dry Fanaticism' Hit By Norris at Inquiry

Enforcement Officers Coming Before His Committee for Nomination Need Not Be Total Abstainers, Senator Declares.

(Associated Press.)

Deploring "fanaticism," Chairman Norris of the Senate judiciary committee, who believes in prohibition "from the bottom of my heart," yesterday made it clear that Federal law enforcement officers coming before his committee for nomination are not going to have to pass the test of "total abstinence."

Senator Norris spoke up after two subcommittees of the judiciary committee, in questioning Federal officers up for nomination yesterday, had touched on the personal habits of the nominees in connection with the dry law. Senator Norris himself asked a nominee for marshal if he drank, but explained later that this nominee had been termed an habitual drunkard.

"I am interested in knowing whether the nominees intend to enforce the law," said Senator Norris. "They must enforce the law, not only the dry law but all laws. I don't believe Federal officers should drink. They can't buy liquor without causing violation of the law. But I am not going to ask about that unless there is a charge of drunkenness against them. I believe in prohibition from the bottom of my heart, but I am disgusted with fanaticism, which if it continues is going to change some against prohibition."

Senator Borah, of Idaho, also a member of the judiciary committee, which passes on the nominations of law-enforcement officers, expressed similar views yesterday after a hearing on nominations. He has charged that "open saloons are running throughout the country."

Sawyer Smith, up for renomination as district attorney in eastern Kentucky, denied emphatically at the hearing that open saloons are running in Covington and Newport.

He volunteered that he did not drink and that he had made it a rule that his three assistants do not drink and believe in prohibition.

"Then you were ahead of Attorney General Mitchell," remarked Senator Borah.

Advice of White House on Speech Is Disclaimed Emphatically.

HIS OWN VIEWS ONLY, STATEMENT ASSERTS

Representative Recently Quit Post on G. O. P. Committee.

BELIEVED AT ODDS WITH PARTY CHIEFS

Gave No Cause to Believe That He Spoke Views of Administration.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Representative Franklin W. Fort, of New Jersey, made a prohibition speech in the House yesterday advocating the law for the drys and home-brew for the wets, and the White House saw red.

The impression is that it gave President Hoover more worry than his arms limitation conference. There was a conference of the secretariat and a statement, the wording of which reflected the President's strong feeling on the subject, was issued.

"The White House has this to say," it said. "Mr. Fort stated correctly when he said he was giving only his own views. There was no occasion for him to consult the White House on his speech and he did not do so."

So far as known Mr. Fort did not in any way seek to give the impression that the White House had been consulted. Indeed, he resigned two days ago from his position of secretary of the Republican national committee.

Speculation on Hoover's Part.

But because of the fact that he was Mr. Hoover's preconvention manager, that he has long been considered very close to the President, and the inescapable fact that he is high in the Republican councils, it was inevitable that there would be speculation as to Mr. Hoover's part in the speech.

The words had hardly gotten out of Mr. Fort's mouth when a newspaper headline heralded "Fort's Home Drinking Plea Seen as President's View," while the wise-crackers about the Capitol were coining such phrases as "Hoover hooch for happy homes." And regardless of whether Mr. Fort did let the impression obtain that he reflected Mr. Hoover's views the White House thinks he did.

There was no serious belief that Mr. Fort's resignation as secretary of the Republican national committee Wednesday meant a rift between him and Mr. Hoover, but there is little doubt but there is something closely akin to one now.

In political circles the truth of the matter is believed to be that Mr. Fort realized his position with the administration was not getting him much and has decided to strike out for himself. It is understood, in fact, that this speech was only the first of a series along the same lines. He is believed to have gubernatorial aspirations in his own State.

Well Received at Capitol.

And his speech was much better received at the Capitol than it was at the White House. Nearly the entire membership of the House sat in rapt attention through its hour's delivery, and at the end all except a few Democrats stood and applauded.

The reaction among the drys, too, was that it would do no harm to see prohibition discussion lifted to a high plane, while those of the wets who want only light wines and beer—Representative Dyer, of Missouri, who wants beer, for example—interpreted the speech as a big boost to their cause.

Mr. Fort said hard liquor was out of the question. "None of the ad-

NURSE IS ACQUITTED IN FATAL OPERATION

Still Faces Murder Charge, Although Jury Absolves Her of Complicity.

SIX BALLOTS ARE TAKEN

Keyser, W. Va., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Miss Luella Wetsel, Harrisonburg, Va., nurse, was acquitted here tonight of complicity in performing an illegal operation blamed for the death of Miss Lonnie Murrell Beckone, Harrisonburg student nurse. The jury reached its verdict after five hours' deliberation.

The jury took six ballots, and after the foreman had delivered the verdict Miss Wetsel shook hands with all the jurors and with a number of spectators who came forward.

There are still several other indictments against Miss Wetzel in connection with the case, one charging murder. Dr. Otto Fisher, the employer of the woman acquitted tonight, is serving a 10-year term in the West Virginia State Prison, following his conviction of performing an illegal operation.

In the closing rebuttal testimony today, the State called witnesses in an effort to disprove the statement made on the stand by Miss Wetsel that she was induced by Ernest A. See, former prosecuting attorney, and other county officials to make statements against Dr. Otto Fisher, convicted of performing an illegal operation on Miss Beckone, which Miss Wetsel declared yesterday were falsehoods.

While Senator George A. Conrad, of Harrisonburg, was concluding for the defense numerous persons in the courtroom were forced to flee by the accidental explosion of a tear gas bomb in the pocket of Sheriff James G. Wright, who was standing 20 feet from Conrad.

BRITISH SHIP SEIZED AS RUNNER OF RUM

Half Case of Whisky and 24 Bottles of Beer Are Claimed Found.

CHASED FOR 70 MILES

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Suspected of being a rum runner, the 50-foot British motorship Northern Register was seized by the United States Coast Guard patrol boat Morris early today while cruising off San Nicholas Island. The motorship was towed into port and Capt. J. P. Tait, commander; Thomas Hansen, engineer, and Ronald N. Williams, a deck hand, were held for investigation.

Coast Guard officers said a preliminary search of the ship revealed a half case of whisky and 24 bottles of beer.

The boat first was sighted off Point Pedros Blancas and followed to San Nicholas Island, 70 miles to the north, where officers said it came within the 12-mile zone and was seized.

The Coast Guard officers said the Northern Register contained no papers, but formerly was used in the fishing trade. Capt. Tait told officers he was en route to Vancouver, B. C., from Ensenada, lower California. The officers alleged they had evidence the boat already had landed a cargo of liquor on the American coast.

All of the men arrested are citizens of Canada and they will be detained until an official investigation has been completed.

Idaho Mine Explosion Fatal to Two Workers

Richer Peasants Are Bitterly Resisting Collective Farming.

DEATH SENTENCES GIVEN

Moscow, Jan. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Savage warfare is being waged openly throughout red Russia between the Soviet government and the Kulaks (richer peasants), who are fighting fiercely against the Kremlin's efforts to force them into government-controlled collective farming enterprises.

Murder of Soviet officials, arson and other property sabotage are the weapons being used by the Kulaks. The government is meeting this resistance to its program with death sentences for opposition leaders and with a campaign designed to starve the Kulaks into submission.

As the war against the Kulaks gains daily in intensity, the opposition of the Kulaks to the Moscow regime grows in proportion. The Soviet press makes no secret of the fact that the Kulaks are resorting to widespread violence.

"We are not making the mistake," Soviet officialdom says, "of thinking that the Kulaks will surrender without an energetic fight. We regard the

POLICE-FIRE SALARY BILL GAINS GROUND

House Subcommittee Approves, in Spite of Warning Taxes Would Go Up.

OPPOSING PLEAS HEARD

The bill to raise the pay of Washington's policemen and firemen was favorably reported yesterday by a subcommittee of the House District committee, which approved the measure in spite of a warning that it might increase taxes.

The warning was sounded by Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that handles the District appropriation bill. He estimated that the pay bill would add $900,000 a year to the District budget.

"If we pass this bill," Simmons declared just before the measure was approved, "we have got to cut down our appropriations for betterments or else boost the tax rate from $1.70 to a rate ranging from $1.90 to $2.00."

The bill approved yesterday next must be acted on by the full House District committee, which meets Wednesday.

The bill increases salaries all along the line in the police and fire department, beginning with the two Parents-in-Law Are Sued for Alleged Alienation of Affections.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Alden S. Condict, a real estate broker and direct descendant of John Alden, testified in court today that his wife used to keep him awake nights reciting verse of her own composition. Condict's suit for $170,000 for alleged alienation of affections against his former parents-in-law is being heard in the State Supreme Court.

Mrs. Condict—who took their daughter to Reno in 1928 and obtained a divorce—invariably ended her recitations, he testified, with "Please, God, flay him."

Condict, whose great-grandfather, Jonathan Dickinson, was the first president of Princeton University, charged in his complaint that his father-in-law, Dr. Fenton B. Turck, a biologist, and the latter's wife, Avis,

Mexicans Expect Visit From Hoover

Ortiz Rubio Announces U. S. Chief Has Written He Will Come.

Mexico City, Jan. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—President-elect Pasqual Ortiz Rubio today told a woman reporter for El Universal, Mexico City newspaper, that he has received a letter from President Hoover in which the latter promised to visit Mexico this summer. Mr. Hoover will come here to return the visit Senor Ortiz Rubio paid to him in Washington recently.

The distinguished visitor from America and Ortiz Rubio, whose inauguration will take place February 5, will pass their time together here in serious talk, the president-elect of Mexico said.

Three conditions affecting the visit have been fixed. "Mr. Hoover and I agreed," said Ortiz Rubio today, "that there should be no banquets, no drinks, no speeches. With these conditions, we shall have a delightful time."

Caraway Would Substitute Commission for President

Ironic Suggestion Made Anent Hoover Request for Haiti Study.

Amendment of the Constitution to convert the executive branch of the Government into a commission form was suggested ironically in the Senate yesterday by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, when another futile attempt was made for consideration of the request of President Hoover for authority to send a commission to study Haitian conditions.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, objected to consideration of the proposed Haitian commission until more time is allowed for debate. The Senate foreign relations committee already has eliminated from the House resolution the authority for a commission and pro-vocates of a change want that, do they?" he asked.

But there is no law against manufacturing either wines or cider in the home for personal consumption or one's bona fide guests, he pointed out, neither is possession of liquor in the home a violation of the Volstead act.

Home Brewers Not Convicted.

Now as to the manufacture of home brew in the home, he said, the word "manufacture" might be clarified, "although nobody has ever been convicted for making it for home use."

Mr. Fort's was not a wet speech. It was decidedly dry.

"Personally my record is that I began the use of liquor as a beverage as a boy of 18, feeling its use to be a social necessity, and I quit at 42, feeling its discontinuance to be a social duty." He pointed out that he ran as a dry in his New Jersey congressional district.

But it is the economic benefits of prohibition that caused him to become a dry, he declared, and the economic benefits that sustain him now.

The friends of prohibition make their greatest mistake, he declared, when they contend that the eighteenth amendment made it "immoral" to drink.

Rules Moral Issue Out.

"The confusion comes from the fact," he said, * * * "that the organization of the temperance movement centered in the churches, but this was in their capacity as ethical and social centers—not as religious and moral ones. And were it otherwise, morals are not coded by the passage of laws—they are defined by the conscience of the individual. We are here dealing with a social habit, whose origin is buried in antiquity. To say to the man whose family for countless generations has been accustomed to this habit that they and he, if he follows their example, have violated a moral duty, brings a justified resentment.

"And from that resentment springs an entirely human impulse to assert the contrary—to challenge the authority which seeks to enforce its theories of right and wrong. I venture the assertion with supreme confidence that if the American people can be made to see that the law attempts no moral code—that the law nowhere denies the right to use liquor—one-half the difficulties of law enforcement would vanish—one-half the users would stop. Take away the challenge to their morals and they will think in terms of ethics and of law.

"It can not be too often stated that the amendment and the Volstead act made unlawful the traffic in liquor—not its use."

Calls Nation Naturally Lawless.

Asserting that Americans are naturally a lawless people and that violation of the prohibition laws is no argument for their repeal, that there had been bootlegging and speak-easies before prohibition and would continue to be under any change, he asked what was an alternative to the present system.

In a case of Government selling, he said, either high prices would have to be charged to encourage temperance and thereby make a vast profit for the Government or "we can hold down the profit by low prices at the risk of increasing consumption. I wonder which is the more repugnant thought. I'll venture that there are not ten men in the House who like either alternative. What, then, of reinstating the traffic? Well, shall it be for drinking on the premises? Of course not—that's the saloon again. But if that is not to be—we'll have to drink at home, even though home drinking is one of the evils we decry in the present system. Well, if we're going to drink at home, we can do that now—if we want it bad enough to make it. So why change the law at all unless, of course, we want hard liquor—and none of the advocates of change want that, do they?"

Advises Antisaloon League.

Incidentally, Mr. Fort told the Antisaloon League, without referring to it by name, but as "those who want abstinence to follow prohibition" that they "leave enforcement to the officers of the law and return to the kind of educational work so splendidly done for so many years by the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Father Mathew T. A. B. S."

This was about all there was to prohibition for the day and it was enough.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced that he had ordered Col. John F. J. Herbert, now dry administrator for Idaho and Montana, to come here for an investigation of the charges against him. This was in answer to Senator Borah's demand that Herbert be either exonerated or dismissed.

And by the way, the House leaders told the House expenditures committee to take back its bill providing for the transfer of enforcement to the Department of Justice and remove the insult that it contained for Secretary Mellon. The committee, headed by Chairman Williamson, of South Dakota, had provided that the issuance of alcohol permits remain under the Secretary, but that the Attorney General prepare the regulations under which they could be issued. The original draft provided for joint preparation of these regulations. The committee was told to stick to the original draft.

Kentucky Coal Miners Strike as Parley Fails

HERBERT DEFENDED BY DORAN IN DISPUTE

Dry Commissioner Says Aid Has Been Exonerated of Borah Charges.

ORDERS HIM TO CAPITAL

Coming to the defense of Col. John P. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator for the Montana Idaho district, who has been charged with unfitness for service by Senator Borah, of Idaho, Commissioner James M. Doran announced last night that the charges against Col. Herbert will be ignored unless new developments arise.

Commissioner Doran said that he has asked Col. Herbert to come to Washington for a conference, but added that no other recognition would be given Senator Borah's allegations unless further charges are made. The prohibition commissioner pointed out that the charges against Col. Herbert have been investigated thoroughly and expressed satisfaction that his "good standing" has not been altered.

Senator Borah has strongly resented the transfer of Col. Herbert from the Baltimore-Washington district to that of Montana and Idaho. He claims that the administrator should have been dismissed rather than transferred. Senator Borah based these charges on Col. Herbert's manner of administration in the office in Baltimore after obtaining certain evidence from Frank Flynn, former prohibition agent. These are the charges that Commissioner Doran declares have been investigated and proven groundless.

ed as much as $3,200 a week from bootleggers.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 31 (A. P.).—The grand jury today returned a no-bill against the three members of the United States Coast Guard crew who killed Eugene F. Downey, jr., in the Buffalo Harbor Christmas night. The charge on which the jury refused to indict the Government men was second-degree manslaughter.

The refusal of the jury to indict the guardsmen, Rudolph Thompson, Asa Ennis and Orville La Grant, came as a surprise to District Attorney Guy B. Moore. Previously he had declared that he had enough evidence to warrant an indictment.

Downey was shot through the leg, the coast guardsman said, when he failed to halt his speed boat at their command. He, or the man who was with him, drove the motor boat to the dock at the foot of West Genesee street. Downey's companion escaped. Downey was left lying in the boat for some time after the shooting. The bullet that struck his leg severed a large vein. He died shortly after he was taken to a hospital.

The action of the jury closes the case.

Wyoming Case Collapses.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The Government's Wyoming liquor conspiracy case collapsed here today in Federal Court against all but 5 of the 29 persons originally indicted. Judge T. Blake Kennedy sustained motions for directed verdicts for seven more defenders in the trial. Charges against fourteen of the defendants previously had been dismissed. One was granted a new trial and two are fugitives from justice.

The remaining defendants are William C. Irving, former Wyoming law enforcement commissioner; Bizette Alfonso, Thermopolis; Mike Bell, Thermopolis; Olinto Marcante, Kemmerer, and Charles Redmon, Kemmerer. Motions for directed verdicts for this quintet remained to be ruled upon.

BURROUGHS SCHOOL STRIKE HELD NEARER

Deadlock With Education Board Persists; Test of Power Looms.

STATUTE IS CONSULTED

Unless a compromise is reached concerning the transfer of seventh and eighth grade pupils of the John Burroughs School to the new Langdon School, the power of the Board of Education to enforce its rulings probably will be brought to a test.

At a protest meeting Thursday night, 30 parents of children affected by the transfer order of the board declared they would refuse to comply with the order, which becomes effective Monday. As a consequence the possibility of a strike loomed yesterday as school authorities indicated the order will not be changed.

In former controversies of like nature a compromise has always been reached, but school authorities are convinced the transfer order is proper and right, consequently there seems to be little likelihood that the board will alter it.

Concerning whether the board has power to enforce its ruling, school authorities referred to the congressional act of 1925, which is apparently applicable in case the Burroughs patrons refuse to send their pupils to school, and stage a strike. This law makes such an act a misdemeanor with each two days of absence a separate offense punishable by a fine of $10 or by commitment to jail for five days, at the discretion of the court.

13 of Tug Crew Die As Vessel Is Sunk

Oil Tanker Reports Loss of Edgar F. Coney in the Gulf of Mexico.

Beaumont, Tex., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A radio message tonight from the Standard Oil tanker Liebre, bound for Beaumont, said the tugboat Edgar F. Coney sank in the Gulf of Mexico with a loss of life of the crew of thirteen. The message was received by M. T. Ball, president of the Sabine Towing Co. at Port Arthur, owners of the Edgar F. Coney.

The tug sailed from Port Arthur with a barge in tow for Mobile Tuesday morning. She was overdue at Mobile 24 hours when the message was received that the barge was found afloat. The steamer reported that the master of the barge had hoisted a distress signal and gave the information that the tug and its crew had gone down. The Liebre rescued the crew of the barge and was expected to dock here Saturday.

Fire-Alarm Joker Sought by Police

Rescue Squad, Engine Company and Reserves Called for Fake Explosion.

Northeast Washington has a practical joker who may laugh himself into a 90-day vacation at Occoquan, if apprehended by the police. For the third time within the past few months the Fire Rescue Squad, No. 10 Engine Company, and the police reserves of No. 9 Precinct, have been summoned by telephone on a wild goose chase to the 1600 block of Kramer street.

Last night all three branches of the service were asked to respond to the home of George Whitney, 1668 Kramer street, where a supposedly explosion of a coal oil stove had seriously injured two women.

Upon arrival at Whitney's home the firemen and police failed to find any trace of a fire, an explosion or any one injured. Police immediately started to check on the telephone call and the joker, if apprehended, may spend the next three months as the guest of the District at Occoquan.

Plaintiff on Stand In Alienation Suit

Chicago Society Woman Asks $300,000 in Action in California.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Defense and prosecution rested their cases late today in the $300,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Mattie Dean Hutchinson, Chicago society woman, against Mrs. Edith P. Taylor. Instructions to the jury will be given at 11 a. m. Monday and arguments will start immediately afterward. The usual court procedure of instructing the jury after the arguments was reversed by stipulation of attorneys, who explained that by so doing guess work in delivering their arguments would be eliminated.

The last testimony was given by the plaintiff, called to the stand in rebuttal. Mrs. Taylor was called to the stand during the afternoon session to identify letters and telegrams received by her while in Hollywood from Hutchinson, who was traveling in the East in connection with his film enterprises.

The letters, most of them signed "Daddy," were read into the records. In them Hutchinson showed his concern for the welfare of Jane Hutchinson Taylor, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Taylor and Hutchinson.

Oath Not to Buy Liquor Asked in South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Future office holders and members of the bar in South Carolina would be required to swear not to "purchase contraband liquor" while in office, under the terms of a joint resolution introduced in the Senate today by Senator Rogers, of Dillon.

The oath of office at present requires one to swear that he has not engaged in a duel since January 1, 1881.

Filipino Dance Halls Closed in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The police revealed today that Filipino dance halls in Los Angeles had been ordered closed temporarily at the request of the Filipino patrons. Beatings suffered by three Filipino youths at the hands of Americans Wednesday and last night were said by Sergt. R. J. Chambers to have inspired the request.

Chambers said investigation indicated that the attacks had been the result of personal quarrels, rather than as an echo of the Filipino disturbances in the northern part of the State.

GRUNDY'S CRITICISM OF HOOVER IS BARED

Lobby Inquiry Hears Remarks Senator Made as to President's Merits.

HIT HIS "INEXPERIENCE"

How a President-elect is appraised by a lobbyist who raised nearly a million dollars to elect him was the theme of the disclosures yesterday before the Senate lobby investigating committee. From the files of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers the committee had dug up a transcript of a speech delivered in December, 1928, by Joseph R. Grundy—at that time "Old Joe," the recognized king of the tariff lobby, now the junior senator from Pennsylvania—in which Grundy expressed grave doubts as to Mr. Hoover's efficiency in the matter of putting through the kind of a tariff bill that Grundy and his associates wanted.

Apparently Grundy was irked because Mr. Hoover, instead of sitting down immediately after the election and going to work on a tariff bill, had decided to take a vacation before inauguration.

How It Struck Grundy.

"Now, we won out by a substantial majority this time, and since the election, what has taken place?" Grundy said, after recalling his tariff successes in 1922. "Our President-elect has slipped out of the country and has gone down to South America on other kinds of business. He won't be back until January, and then he plans to go somewhere in the South to sojourn for a while.

"My concern is not lessened at all by the knowledge that the President-elect, while he is a very fine fellow and that State that I have the honor of coming from gave him almost 1,000,000 majority to show its confidence in him, has never had any legislative experience. He never ran for office before. He never ran for even the office of dog catcher. He doesn't know anything at all, from experience, what legislation means. His mind runs on many other subjects than economic subjects."

Grundy expressed fears that the agricultural interests would get the jump on the Eastern industries and incidentally he coined a new phrase, "pocket boroughs," to designate the Western and Southern States which he had referred to as "backward commonwealths" in his recent testimony before the lobby committee.

Reynolds on Wool Pay Roll.

Franklin W. Hobbs, of Boston, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, was the only witness heard by the committee yesterday. He spent most of his time explaining that he did not agree with all of the views expressed by Grundy. Incidentally Hobbs revealed that James B. Reynolds, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and former secretary of the Republican national committee, received $4,000 a year to represent the wool association in Washington. He insisted, however, that Mr. Reynolds took no part in tariff activities.

The committee recessed over the week-end and will resume its hearings on Tuesday with a further inquiry into the activities of the Silk Association of America.

Man Found Shot Dead After Blackmail Threat

Walnut Ridge, Ark., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—John P. Kirby, 55, restaurant operator, was found dead in bed at his home here today with a bullet in his heart after causing the arrest of two men he said had tried to blackmail him. He had a pistol in his hand.

Kirby had told police that the two men approached him several days ago and said they would "tell something" that would ruin the reputation of his son, Buster, unless he paid them $200. He refused. Twice yesterday they repeated the demand, he said, once by telephone. Authorities expressed the belief that worry over the threats led him to commit suicide.

SENATE ELIMINATES TARIFF ON CEMENT

Proposed Levy of 8 Cents Per 100 Pounds Beaten by 40-to-35 Vote.

VICTORY FOR COALITION

(Associated Press.)

Another major building material was restored to the tariff free list yesterday by the Senate when it voted, 40 to 35, to eliminate from the Hawley-Smoot bill a proposed levy of 8 cents a hundred pounds on hydraulic cement.

Reunited after several splits in their respective groups, the Democrats and Republican independents—who have been generally successful in striking out tariff increases on industrial products—proved too strong for the cement-duty advocates. They had adopted an amendment by Senator McMaster (Republican independent), South Dakota, to retain the product in its present free category. Both the House and Seenate finance committee measures proposed a rate of 8 cents a hundred pounds.

Twenty-four Democrats, 15 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, supported the free-list amendment. Twenty-nine Republicans and 6 Democrats opposed it.

Roll Call Is Listed.

The roll call follows:

Democrats for—Barkley, Black, Bratton, Caraway, Connally, Fletcher, Glass, Harris, Hawes, Heflin, Kendrick, Overman, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Steck, Swanson, Thomas (Oklahoma), Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh (Massachusetts), Walsh (Montana), and Wheeler. Total, 24.

Republicans for—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Frazier, Glenn, Howell, LaFollette, McMaster, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Pine and Schall. Total, 15.

Farmer-Labor for—Shipstead. Total, 1.

Grand total for, 40.

29 Republicans Against.

Republicans against—Baird, Bingham, Dale, Deneen, Fess, Goff, Goldsborough, Greene, Grundy, Hale, Hatfield, Hebert, Johnson, Jones, Kean, Keyes, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Patterson, Robinson (Indiana), Robsion, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Sullivan, Vandenberg, Walcott and Watson. Total, 29.

Democrats against—Ashurst, Broussard, Copeland, Dill, McKellar, Ransdell. Total, 6.

Grand total against, 35.

After the vote, Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, had restored to the bill a provision allowing a countervailing duty on cement where foreign nations tax American cement exports. This clause automatically went out of the bill when the House and finance committee placed the duty on cement.

Author of "Bad Babies" And Players Sentenced

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—George Scarborough, author of the play "Bad Babies," today was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail on conviction of participating in production of an indecent show. Jobyna Ralston, motion picture actress, and four other members of the cast, convicted with Scarborough, were fined $300 each with the alternative of spending 30 days in jail. None of the fines have been paid and all gave notice of appeal.

The arrests occurred in a raid on the play last August by district attorney's investigators.

Suzanettes for Tennis Mark Lenglen Debut as Modiste

Former Net Star Displays Creation of Shorts and Sleeveless Blouse as Latest in Sport Togs for Court Game.

Paris, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Suzanettes—jaunty suits reminiscent of the athletic underwear of "mon homme," but designed as tennis togs for "la femme"—made their fashion debut here today along with the stylist debut of their creator, Suzanne Lenglen.

The suzanettes, a combination of shorts and sleeveless blouse, were introduced by a little-known house in an unfashionable part of Paris as the tennis-togs contribution of the woman who was once the queen of tennis courts and is now the head of its sportswear department.

The suits with front-fastening knee-length trousers have accompanying wrap-around skirts and matching coats that mark an ensemble. They were almost exact duplicates of the frocks which the former woman world tennis champion wore on the gala courts of Europe and received warm praise.

Mlle. Lenglen, who once grew so nervous before tennis matches that she pranced about like a toe dancer, was calm and cool on the occasion of her dressmaking debut. Throughout the opening she sat quietly beside Didi Viasto, now Mme. Hicopolas, her former doubles partner and close friend.

Mlle. Lenglen also sponsored double sweater ensembles of two colors with matching headbands and white silk pleated dresses, designed with the tight fitted bodice she herself popularized.

The majority of today's style showing was devoted to sportswear. Skirts for active sports averaged 4 to 6 inches below the knee in length. Many tennis costumes included shorts of matching material, generally of white tub silk, pique or linen.

Trousers continue to arouse wide interest for sports, beach and indoor wear.

GOVERNOR MOVES IN CHICAGO CRISIS

Cook County Tax Muddle Perils Credit of State, Emmerson Says.

SOLUTION IS SPEEDED

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Gov. Louis L. Emmerson cracked the whip of authority over Cook County's taxing officials today to protect the credit of Illinois. As a result, it was announced that tax books will leave the hands of the assessors and board of review of Cook County by May 1, which will assure the mailing of tax bills about June 1.

"Chicago is my friend and I want to do everything to help her in her present crisis," Gov. Emmerson said, "but the State is threatened with a most embarrassing situation.

"And before I allow the State to repudiate its bonds, I'll call a special session of the legislature which will have as its sole and only purpose the protection of the State from such a catastrophe."

Poverty Now Pinching State.

Cook County pays the major part of the State's taxes. As a result of its delay in payment, the State is beginning to feel the pinch of poverty, the governor said. Because it has not received its share of Cook County's 1928 tax levy, he said, it has been unable to redeem $300,000 worth of waterway bonds which became due January 1, and now the soldiers' bonus bonds and the University of Illinois finances are seriously threatened.

To seek a way out of the distressing situation, he said, he had called a conference of himself, State Treasurer Omar Custer, State Auditor Oscar Nelson, the State Tax Board, the Cook County Board of Review and the Cook County assessors.

"What's the matter with Cook County?" the governor then asked. It was then that contention arose. E. R. Litsinger, of the Cook Board of Review, blamed William H. Malone, chairman of the State tax board, for placing an "auditor-detective" in his office to check up their books.

Strawn Denies Responsibility.

Malone jumped up and denied this, asserting that the auditor had been placed there by Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' rescue committee." This was later denied by Mr. Strawn.

Charles Ringer, of the board of assessors, told the governor that the last of the reassessment books will be completed and sent to the board of review by February 20. Members of the Board of Review added to this that they would require probably 20 days to hear complaints, especially the charge that the loop is underassessed. That would bring the delay to May 1. Then it will be another month before the county clerk extends the items and forwards the bills to be mailed by the county treasurer.

Farmers Request "Adequate" Tariff

5,000 Illinois Men Act After Hearing Hyde Make Speech.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—After hearing a speech by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde in which he prescribed tariff protection for the ills of American agriculture, 5,000 farmers attending the Illinois Agricultural Association Convention today adopted a resolution urging Congress to adopt adequate "protective" duties.

The resolution demanded equalization of production costs of European and South American farm commodities as compared to the cost of American production.

Secretary Hyde told the farmers, "Tariff lies at the very foundation of any sound plan to improve the condition of American agriculture." He said American agriculture is entitled to an American market which can be obtained only by sufficient tariff.

SUSPECT PAIR TAKEN AFTER STORE THEFT

Shattering of Glass Causes Crowd and Policemen to Chase Robbers.

ALLEGED LOOT IS FOUND

Crashing through a plate glass door of the Home Furnishing Co., at Seventh and M streets northwest, last night, two men, their arms laden with women's wearing apparel, bested police and citizens in a foot race and escaped. Two suspects later were arrested on charges of investigation.

The men, police reported, apparently secreted themselves in the store before it was closed for the night. After scooping up a large quantity of women's dresses, silken finery and other apparel, they smashed the plate glass door with an iron bar and dashed to the street.

Attracted by the shattering glass, a number of citizens, who were later joined by Detective Sergt. Harry Cole, of the central office, and a detail of Second Precinct policemen, gave chase. The fugitives dropped a quantity of the loot in making good their getaway.

Police arrested John Simmons, colored, 45 years old, of Seventh street northwest, and James Nelson, colored, 19 years old, of Six-and-a-half street northwest, at the latter's home in connection with the robbery. Police said they seized clothing valued at $400 in the house.

Police With Tear Bombs Bar Reds From Council

Minneapolis, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Minneapolis aldermen were guarded in the council chambers today by policemen armed with tear gas bombs after Communist demonstrators had warned the aldermen they would pay them a visit.

Policemen in plain clothes, were placed on guard after 50 Communists had visited the City Hall. Headed by a girl, the Communists paraded through the corridors, made an unsuccessful attempt to see Mayor W. F. Kunze and then told the aldermen they would visit the council today. The paraders bore placards demanding work, a 7-hour day and a 5-day week.

Du Pont Renews Offer To Donate Park Land

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A telegram from T. Coleman du Pont, former United States senator from Delaware, affirming that he had renewed his offer to donate the Cumberland Falls tract to the State of Kentucky for park purposes, was received by Lieut. Gov. James Breathitt today.

It was charged on the floor of the Senate yesterday that a letter from Du Pont was a forgery and that the offer had never been received by the State Park Commission.

TAXI REGULATIONS ARE NOW IN EFFECT

840 Temporary Certificates Are Issued by Utilities Commission.

GRACE PERIOD EXPIRES

Whatever hardship the new Public Utilities Commission taxicab regulations have worked on some individuals, the regulations apparently will not result in any material diminution in the number of taxicabs, officials estimated last night.

The grace period given by the commission, within which taxicab operators must comply with commission regulations, expired midnight last night. Under the new rgeulations taxicab operators must give assurance to the commission of their financial ability to pay damages, if damages are awarded, for the injury of passengers in their cabs. The commission also has assumed jurisdiction over the accuracy of taxicab meters and the efficacy of taxicab brakes and other equipment.

E. J. Milligan, chief clerk of the Utilities Commission, remained at his desk Thursday and last night until late in the evening waiting to accommodate late applicants for commission approval. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman; Harleigh H. Hartman and Col. William B. Ladue, members of the commission, joined in statements that the commission's new taxicab regulations were not intended to force any independent out of business and pointed to the number of temporary operating permits which had been issued by the commission.

Mr. Milligan said that he had issued 840 temporary certificates to taxicabs at the close of the normal business day yesterday, although the number might be increased by late applicants whom he waited to receive. There have been 217 permanent certificates issued by the commission, Mr. Milligan said.

Police have been enlisted to enforce the commission regulation program and operators without permits from the commission are to be arrested.

Attracted by the smoke the distracted mother rushed to scene with neighbors, but they could not help the imprisoned children.

PLANES WILL PRESS THEIR EIELSON HUNT

Crosson Says Pilots Have No Intention of Ending Search for Bodies.

GIRL TELLS HER PLANS

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The six pilots and airplanes at the fur-trading vessel Nanuk, icebound at North Cape, Siberia, will stay there until Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Alaskan fliers missing since November 9 last, are found either dead or alive, Joe Crosson, one of the fliers at the Nanuk, who had been reported ready to "quit the North," radioed to Nome today.

Wreckage of the plane flown by Eielson and Borland was found 90 miles southeast of North Cape last Saturday by Crosson and Pilot Harold Gilliam.

"All of us engaged in the search here were agreed today that we would stay and see this job through despite discouraging results the diggers have had since they started hunting the bodies Sunday," Crosson's message said.

Crosson told of finding chairs, handkerchiefs and more mittens which were in the Eielson plane when it left Teller, Alaska, November 9 on a second trip to the Nanuk.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Marion Swenson, Seattle high school girl, who has been icebound on the fur-trading vessel Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, since last fall, is coming home, she radioed to the Seattle Times today.

"Daddy has decided that we will fly to Nome either on the first or second plane out from the Nanuk," the girl's message said. "It may be a long time before we leave, however, as the two Fairchild planes sent out to search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland probably won't fly to Alaska before the bodies are found. They will be used to bring the furs from the Nanuk when the other work is completed.

"After we reach Nome we will fly to Fairbanks and take the train for Seward, where we will board a steamer for Seattle. I've had a wonderful experience, but it will be good to get home to Seattle."

The girl left Seattle early last summer with her father on a fur-trading expedition to northeastern Siberia. She has been in the midst of the search for the Alaskan airmen who were lost November 9 while trying to reach the Nanuk from Teller.

Women of Three Countries Plead for Naval Reduction

American Delegation Has Memorial From Six Million of Sex.

MRS. CASPAR WHITNEY.

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The women interested in the naval conference are getting into their stride both politically and socially.

The arrival today of delegates from women's organizations of three countries brought into play the attitude of their members in the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan who are hoping their petition to the conference asking drastic naval reductions will have some part in impressing upon the delegates the belief of these women in world peace.

Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, heading the American women's delegation, consisting of Mrs. Caspar Whitney and Miss Josephine Schein, visited Ambassador Dawes and Secretary Stimson telling them of their mission and giving them an outline of a memorial containing the signatures of 30,000 women. These signatures are those of officers of women's clubs numbering 6,000,000 women.

Secretary Stimson and Ambassador Dawes were both represented as hopeful the women will be granted an audience by a plenary session of the conference, as soon as the agenda is completed and the discussion of figures under way.

Two Japanese women accompanied the Americans, having in their care an enormous trunk in which was a petition carrying the signatures of 180,000 Japanese women. The petition asked the conference "to lay the foundation for established permanent peace."

Mrs. Tsune Gauntlet interviewed former Premier Wakatsuki and Admiral Takarabe and reported the same favorable reception of the naval delegates as did the Americans. Further impetus was added to the British women's petition, which will be presented through the British women's peace crusade by a meeting of the Women's Liberal Association today when a resolution was adopted asking "the drastic limitation of naval armaments as a step toward the ultimate abandonment of all weapons of war."

This afternoon the women's club delegates attended a reception at the American Women's Club in honor of the wives of the American naval delegates.

Text of French Scheme On Naval Measurement

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The text of the French proposal for compromising the naval measurement problem at the five-power conference was given out tonight. It was labeled "French Transactional Proposal" and was as follows:

The limitation of naval material deals with floating material and consists of the following: (1) Measures for limitation; (2) measures for public information; (3) regulations for replacements.

Under the first heading, measures for limitation:

(A) The limitation of floating material relates to total or global tonnage; that is to say, to the total of the individual displacements of all vessels susceptible of being used as fighting units, with the exception of those vessels which are specified as not yet subject to limitation.

Maximum Total Tonnage.

The maximum total tonnage which no high contracting power shall exceed during the period of the application of the convention is fixed at —— tons.

A table shows for each high contracting power the total tonnage which, taking into consideration the limit laid down in the preceding paragraph and present states of security, this high contracting power undertakes not to exceed during the period of the application of the convention.

(B) The individual standard of displacement for vessels to be laid down after the convention goes into force, shall not exceed —— tons.

(C) The caliber of the guns of vessels to be laid down after the convention goes into force, shall not exceed —— tons.

Public Information Measures.

Under the second heading, measures for public information:

Limitations specified in section 1 are supplemented by the following measures for public information:

(A) A table of tonnage by class shows the way in which each high contracting power intends to distribute, during the period of application of the convention, the total tonnage which it has limited by the figure indicated, so far as it is concerned, in the table of total tonnages allotted to the particular powers. For each class this tonnage corresponds to the figure which should not be exceeded during the period of the application of the convention, by the total of the individual displacements of all vessels which at any one moment are on active service and which, by their characteristics, belong to the class in question. The classes mentioned above are specified as follows:

Vessels By Classifications.

Class A—Vessels, the individual standard displacement of which exceeds 10,000 tons or with guns of more than 8-inch caliber.

Class B—Light surface vessels with guns exceeding 6 inches caliber.

Class C—Light surface vessels whose guns do not exceed 6 inches caliber.

Class D—Submarines.

Class E—Aircraft carriers.

Class F—Special vessels such as mine-layers, training ships, aircraft, transports, &c.

Within the limit of the total tonnage and in the absence of more strict conditions resulting from special conventions to which it is or may become a party, each national may alter this distribution, subject to the following conditions:

(1) Tonnages by class shall in no case be the object of increase or subtraction of an amount exceeding the figures given in the annexed table.

(2) The amount of tonnage of one class which is to be transferred to another class shall be notified to other nations at least one year before the laying down of the ship or ships, for the construction of which the transferred tonnage has been assigned.

Builders to Notify Others.

Each nation shall notify the others within a month following the laying down of any vessel that is being built for its own account, the type and the displacement of this vessel. This information shall be supplemented at the time the vessel is launched by publication of the main characteristics of the armaments of the vessel.

Even should they not have been declared to be in active service, ships still under construction shall be regarded as being on such service after the lapse of a period dating from their laying down of — years in the case of Class A, of — years in the case of Class B, of — years in the case of Class C, of — years in the case of Class D, of — years in the case of Clarr E, of — years in the case of Class F.

NAVAL DISCUSSION PLAN IS ACCEPTED

Tardieu Offers Compromise Between Tonnage and Category Basis.

DECISION DUE TUESDAY

there is one novel feature which at once aroused interest. The French document hints rather than suggests directly that there shall be a continental standard of limitation as opposed to an oceanic standard, and I believe that some such phrase at one time stood in the draft, but was removed at British suggestion.

A clause about "more strict conditions resulting from special conventions" means that Great Britain, the United States and Japan might agree that there should be no shifting between categories, as among themselves, while the other two participants, France and Italy, could transfer tonnage from one class of ships to another upwards or downwards as indicated in the French draft.

Would Forestall Surprises.

This is new and important. It is generally considered a move whereby France seeks to safeguard herself against any possible Italian building surprises, while hoping that the larger powers will not object, and if they don't, such an agreement as France desires need not prevent strict limitation between the big navies such as the United States would prefer.

Other delegations were extremely reserved tonight on this proposal. In American quarters no comment was obtainable.

The British hinted that many features of the French draft are open to objection. They want to know, as First Lord of the Admiralty Albert Victor Alexander told the committee of the whole today, what percentage of tonnage is to be subject to transfer from one category to another and how this would affect total naval strength before taking a stand, and this can not be ascertained until the figures are tabulated.

Committee Plan Balked.

The French would be able to build 9,999-ton cruisers carrying 6-inch guns within the small cruiser category under this draft, but immediately the Hawkins class of the British navy, four ships of 9,800 tons, each carrying 7.5-inch guns, becomes the object of interest to the Americans.

It was agreed not to class these as 8-inch-gun treaty cruisers in the Anglo-American conversations last summer, but under the present scheme their status would again come up for review.

Although the ostensible object of the plenary session yesterday was to appoint a committee of ten members to deal with these subjects, that committee died before its birth. This was because all the chief delegates wanted a limited committee, but the British dominion representatives told Prime Minister MacDonald that they must be given seats on it as a matter of prestige and as full delegates, not as advisers.

MacDonald demurred, but the decision of the imperial conference of 1926 was cited against him. This recognizes the independent statehood of the dominions, so MacDonald collapsed, and then the other nations protested against the unwieldy committee that would result. The outcome was suppression of the committee for the present and reference of tonnage question to committee No. 1, or the committee of the whole, on which all delegates can sit.

Tuesday Session to Decide.

The proposition of the French delegation for compromise between the global tonnage and category methods of limiting navies, as put forward today, is, in fact, a general plan for the conduct of the whole conference. Every deal to be made here for naval limitation can fit into it, and indeed, must be arrived at before the French scheme, if adopted at the next meeting to be held Tuesday, becomes workable.

The proposal is called French, but all the delegations, including the American, made suggestions through Robert Leslie Craigie, of the British foreign office, and Rene Massigli, of the French foreign office, who went over the ground together before the French drafted it.

It is considered an Anglo-French compromise and, if so, it can form the basis of discussions from now on. It won't be an accomplished compromise, however, until next Tuesday, and only then if the scope for negotiations it provides is considered wide enough by the other delegations.

The French consider the scheme useful in two ways in advancing limitation. First, in that each participant must finally with all the others tell all its naval purposes, both in fixed and shifting categories, coming out simultaneously with their figures.

Secondly, it keeps the entire discussion here on a wide enough basis for the Italians to continue their part in it without abandoning the reservations under which they entered such discussion. The French say that, under their scheme, the Italians will not be obliged to leave the conference to save their face or to make it apparent that they are isolated in their demand for parity with France.

Lady Astor Lauds Delegates of U. S.

Are Ablest Representatives Ever Sent Out by Nation, She Declares.

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Lady Astor thinks the American delegation to the five power naval conference is the ablest group of representatives the United States has sent anywhere. She said so today in talking to a newspaperman.

"This is the ablest delegation America has sent anywhere," she said. "Everybody is greatly impressed by the ability of the American delegates. They are all outstanding men. My only regret is that Prime Minister MacDonald did not ask some of our outstanding men to come into the conference.

"Our government is a minority government, but he has the whole of the country behind him. It might have been otherwise, however, and have been the case of President Wilson all over again."

Keyes Bribe Conviction Upheld in California

Los Angeles, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The appellate court today upheld the conviction of Asa Keyes, former Los Angeles County district attorney, who is under sentence to serve one to fourteen years in San Quentin prison for accepting bribes while in office.

The decision denying Keyes' appeal was signed by Justices Lewis R. Works, Ira Thompson and Gavin Craig, of the appellate court. It applied also to the appeal of Ed Rosenberg, who was convicted with Keyes of taking bribes to obtain the dismissal of conspiracy charges brought against defendants in the Julian Petroleum Corporation stock oversisue of three years ago.

N. B. Fields Dead At 71 Years of Age

Former Member of White House Guards to Be Buried in Virginia.

Napoleon B. Fields, 71 years old, a member of the White House police for 32 years, died yesterday in Georgetown University Hospital, after an illness of ten days. Mr. Fields fell on the ice and received injuries which later developed septic poisoning.

During his services at the White House he served under all the Presidents from Cleveland to Harding. He retired in 1921. In the last fifteen years of his service he was on night duty in the executive offices.

Mr. Fields was a native of Virginia and had lived in this city for 47 years. While he was in the police service he made a collection of autographed pictures of the Presidents as far back as Cleveland. In addition to these he numbered among the group the pictures of dignataries who had been entertained at the White House.

He is survived by a son, Francis, of San Antonio, Tex.

Funeral services will be held tonight at the funeral parlor of George W. Wise. Burial will be in Marshall, Va. He lived at 2813 Bellevue terrace.

POLICE AND FIREMAN PAY RAISE ADVANCED

chiefs, whose pay would be increased from $5,200 a year to $8,500 a year.

Privates in the two departments would start at $1,900 a year and, providing they behaved and were efficient, would get a $100 increase every year until they reached a maximum of $2,400. At the present the basic pay for privates is $1,800 and the maximum $2,100.

The bill was approved yesterday after an all-day hearing by a subcommittee headed by Representative Lampert (Republican), of Wisconsin, and including Representatives Beers and Sullivan (Republicans), of Pennsylvania; Reid (Republican), of Illinois; Palmer (Republican), of Missouri; Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey; Hall (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Sullivan (Democrat), of New York.

In the morning Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty and the heads of all the trade bodies and of many civic bodies appeared before the subcommittee to indorse the bill.

Dougherty offered an amendment to the bill to prune the increases in the bill so as to make the salaries more nearly correspond with the salaries of other officials out the subcommittee was so strongly in favor of the bill as written that this amendment was rejected.

Among others who indorsed the bill were Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce; Dr. George C Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; W. C. Roberts, of the American Federation of Labor; Edward J. Murphy, president of the Board of Trade; Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; John D. Colpoys, president of the Washington Central Labor Union; Frank A. Varney, president of the Policemen's Association; Sergt. Milton Smith, former president of that association; E. O. Connor, president of the Firemen's Association; George K. Richardson, secretary of the National Association of Firefighters, and Fred W. Baer, of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

Arguments Favoring Raise.

Summed up, the argument in favor of a pay increase was that the policemen and firemen here are not as well paid as those in other cities; that the hazardous nature of their work entitles them to better pay; that better pay is necessary if good men are to be attracted, and that the people here approve better pay.

Opposing the bill at the afternoon session, Representative Simmons submitted a set of figures compiled by the Bureau of Efficiency, which, he said, would show that the policemen and firemen here are as well paid as those in about twenty other cities. He said that, in view of the increases granted to all Government workers by the Welch bill, he felt that some increases ought to be granted, but not to the extent provided in the bill under consideration.

Chairman Lampert pointed out that all the trade and civic bodies had proved the bill, and that there had been no opposition to it.

"The real taxpayers of Washington are not represented by the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce and these other organizations," Mr. Simmons said. "Of course these business organizations will be glad to have nearly $1,000,000 more in salaries paid in the District of Columbia."

Representative Palmer, of Missouri, said he favored the bill, even if it did bring about a tax increase. It is only by paying good salaries, he said, that a good Police Department and Fire Department can be maintained.

"You can't get something for nothing," he said.

POLICE DOG KILLED IN 'PANTHER' SEARCH

Animal, Mistaken for Wild Marauder, Is Shot Dead in Back Yard.

HURT SALESMAN BETTER

Fear of the "phantom panther" among residents of the northeast section and nearby Maryland cost the life of a female German police dog yesterday morning in Capitol Heights, while two persons, wounded by hunters of the marauding animal, were recovering.

Alert to slay the elusive "panther," John Henderson, 35 years old, of Capitol Heights, fired eight shots from an automatic gun at close range when the dog, apparently nosing along the snow-covered ground for a morsel of food, moved sloly near a chicken house in his back yard. Henderson did not discover his mistake until the dog fell over.

Meanwhile Albert B. Curtis, 25-year-old salesman, of Minnesota avenue near Eighteenth street southeast, was reported recovering at Emergency Hospital from wounds in both legs received Wednesday night accidentally during the "panther" hunt. A 7-year-old colored youth, Gerson Perry, also was recovering from a wound inflicted in his leg by his 9-year-old brother in a similar hunt.

Eleventh Precinct police last night continued to hold themselves in readiness to track down any and all reports concerning the mysterious creature, and placed no credit in the belief that the slain dog may have been the wild animal reported seen so frequently in the Northeast.

Lieut. Col. Fisher Succumbs to Illness

Veteran of Two Wars Dies at Walter Reed Hospital.

Lieut. Col. Ronald E. Fisher, 56 years old, veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars, died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital after a long illness. He was holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, given to him for gallantry in action against the Moros in the Philippines.

Col. Fisher also held other citations for bravery. From the time of his enlistment, during the Spanish-American War, until 1921, he rose from the grade of enlisted man to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

He was a graduate of the Army War College, Army Service School and the Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

In addition to his widow he is survived by two daughters—Martha and Marian; a son, Dorsey, vice consul at Calcutta, India; a brother, Lieut. Col. Arthur G. Fisher, of the Air Corps, and four sisters.

Funeral services will be held at the Fort Myer Chapel Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

He made his home at the Fairfax Apartments, 2100 Massachusetts avenue.

Two Suspects Are Held In One-Man Rum Raid

Revenue Agent J. T. Weigel staged a raid on an L street residence near Seventeenth street northwest at 6:30 o'clock last night to arrest two men on charges of possession of nine pints of liquor. They were booked at the Third Precinct station and released on $500 bond each.

The men gave their names as Edward Manix, 55 years old, of Sixteenth street near Columbia road northwest, and Frank Parker, colored, 21 years old, of N street near First street northwest.

JOHN ALDEN SCION HITS WIFE'S VERSE

made uncomplimentary remarks about him to Mrs. Condict, especially as regarded his ability to support a wife.

For instance, he testified today, Dr. Turck informed him in 1926 that he was like the French statesman, Caillaux, "always getting some one else to pay your debt."

Condict said Dr. Turck just before their honeymoon in November, 1925, had given him a check for $1,000. This, he asserted, he understood he was to spend as he saw fit, but it seemed, as he later discovered when the bill came around, that Dr. Turck expected him to spend it on furniture.

The couple had one child.

Calls for Husband, Gone 4 Months.

A plea for her husband's return after four months' disappearance was broadcast last night by radio for Mrs. H. L. Hampton, now living at 14 Ash avenue, Takoma Park, Md. The wife, who is working to support a daughter, Nancy, 12 years old, and herself, said she is willing to take her husband back, job or no job.

AUTO SHOW CLOSING IS SET FOR MONDAY

Association Decides to Hold Over Demonstration for Two More Days.

WILL BE OPEN TOMORROW

Responding to an insistent public demand, the local automobile show will be continued Sunday and Monday, instead of closing tonight as originally planned. Decision to give the extra "performances" was reached last night at a conference of Washington Automotive Trade Association officials.

According to the announcement made by Rudolph Jose, chairman of the committee in charge of the exposition at the Washington Auditorium, the step was taken in direct response to an emphatic public interest in the new cars and other exhibits, and marks a departure in the history of these displays.

As a result of the action taken last night, the show will open at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and run until 10:30 p. m. On Monday the doors of the Auditorium will be thrown open at 10 a. m. and the final curtain will be rung down at 10:30 o'clock that night.

"The Washington Automotive Trade Association is glad to accede to the public's apparent desire that the show be continued," Mr. Jose said last night. "While the crowds attendnig the show this year are in excess of the record throngs of 1929, we have received scores of requests from persons whom the weather prevented from visiting the show several days during the past week that we extend the time limit on the exposition to enable them to make their annual inspection of the latest automotive developments as they are presented under a single roof."

The show committee last night also drew attention to the fact that, as in past years, classes from the various public, private and parochial schools of the city are admitted to the Auditorium without charge during the afternoon hours, if the students are accompnaied by teachers.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

There is a regulation in the traffic code that makes life uncomfortable for the absent-minded motorist. It requires an automobile driver to shut off the engine when he leaves the car with no one there to drive it. There is an obvious safety purpose behind this provision, for the car would become a menace if it were put into gear with no one present capable of operating it.

The law makes an exception of vehicles used by the postal service and permits their engines to be left running while the operators are collecting or delivering mail within easy reach.

Example: A driver stops in front of his home for "just a minute." He leaves his wife, who knows nothing of operating a car, sitting in the front seat. A policeman, seeing the driver's seat unoccupied, asks where the operator is. When the latter returns, he is informed that he has violated the regulation.

Pair Hurt in Crash On Baltimore Pike

Capital Resident's Skull Is Fractured and His Leg Crushed.

Two men were injured critically yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding skidded into a culvert on the Baltimore pike near Dead Man's Curve. The driver, David Zollerhosen, 22, 2612 Thirty-third street southeast, was thrown from the car and his head struck the stone culvert.

Mr. Zollerhosen and John H. Coryell, 26, Bradbury Heights, Md., owner of the car, were taken to St. Agnes' Hospital in Baltimore in a truck. Mr. Zollerhosen was found to have a fractured skull, internal injuries and a crushed left leg, while Mr. Coryell had a fractured skull and internal injuries. Both men were in a critical condition.

According to Maryland State Policeman C. C. Serman, stationed at Elkridge, the car evidently skidded when the brakes were applied while it was traveling at a high rate of speed. The car was demolished.

ROAD BILL PASSED BY VIRGINIA HOUSE

Measure Designed to Add 1,587 Miles to State Highway System.

HEARINGS ARE LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 31.—The Porter-Rhodes bill, designed to add 1,587 miles to the State highway system, backed by what its opponents called "the greatest political bunk since the bond issue fight," was passed by the House of Delegates today, 65 to 25, while in the Senate a compromise was reached whereby, if it passes, income tax exemptions will be increased from $1,000 to $1,250 for single persons and from $2,000 to $2,800 for persons with dependents, representing a tax reduction of some $300,000.

Many opponents of the road bill, which would add the mileage under the same provisions as the Vaughan act of 1928, admitted privately, according to Delegate Vivian L. Page, of Norfolk, that they would not have voted for the measure if they had believed the Senate was willing to pass it. Opponents in debate called it "paper mileage" and urged that the State Highway Commission, which has its work cut out for ten years to come, be left to work on the roads it now has without being encumbered with additional work.

Alexandrian Against Measure.

Delegate Ashton Dovell, who has led the fight for its passage, said that if the new mileage were not added now, "the cities will be asking for duplicate entrances while the counties remain in the mud."

Delegate J. Fred Birrell, of Alexandria, spoke against the measure, and said, in answer to a question, as to whether he represented a rural community, that he was thankful he did not "because of the selfishness they have shown over these paper miles."

The General Assembly, although faced with much routine work, adjourned this afternoon until Monday, when it will face a long series of hearings on controversial subjects, including election law reforms and seafood legislation on Monday, the liberal arts college for women on Tuesday, the Norfolk-Portsmouth bridge bill and the gasoline tax on Wednesday and the workmen's compensation act on Thursday.

Chief developments of the day included: Introduction by Delegate Wilbur C. Hall, of Loudoun, and fifteen others, as copatrons of the chain store tax measure, which would seek to curb "monopolistic tendencies."

Income Tax Bill Amended.

Agreement by Senate finance committee to amendments, an income tax measure of Senator E. R. Fuller, by Senators Robert Gilliam, of Petersburg, and Lloyd E. Warren, of Portsmouth, which would reduce income taxes of single persons $3.75 and of heads of households $16.

Near defeat and resultant passing by of Brewer bill that would have given cities of the second class, including Suffolk, Winchester and Harrisonburg the right to assess 40 per cent of the $1 State bank stock tax to make up for losses under the tax segregation act.

Advancement to third reading in Senate of barber bill by vote of 19 to 16.

Passage by House of Dey bill to repeal provision providing for county road board for Princess Anne because method has been abandoned.

Advancement to third reading of Dovell bill to repeal tax code provision that makes it mandatory that poll tax be paid if other State license is to be procured.

NATIONAL SYMPHONY DEBUT MERITORIOUS

New Washington Orchestra Warmly Received by Distinguished Audience.

MRS. HOOVER ATTENDS

Eighty local musicians organized into the National Symphony Orchestra, Washington's own, gave a creditable first concert yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall before an interested audience, which included Mrs. Herbert Hoover, with a party of friends, seated in the presidential box. The concert was under distinguished patronage.

The conductor of the new National Symphony Orchestra, Rudolf Schueller, of Cleveland, Ohio, led the entire concert, which was comprehensive in scope and gave an excellent opportunity for the new aggregation to exhibit its musical skill. The personnel of the orchestra included many musicians familiar to Washingtonians. The orchestra officers were all present, including President Frank J. Frost; Vice President Rudolf Schueller; Secretary Sol Minster; Treasurer Robert Staszny and George Gaul, business manager. The concert was under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

In appreciation of this cooperative movement on the part of local musicians to give Washington a symphony orchestra, the audience vigorously applauded the musicians as they took their places on the stage. When Rudolf Schueller, the conductor, appeared, he was given an individual ovation.

The most critical in the audience were soon satisfied with the excellent ensemble tone developed in the playing of the thrilling "Tannhauser Overture," which was the first number. The orchestra played it with precision and nicety of shading and phrasing. Mr. Schueller rapidly won favor as a conductor. His reading of this Wagner classic proved the score was as a dear familiar book to him.

In the four movements of the "L'Arlesienne," the orchestral suite in A from "A. Daudet's Drama," by Georges Bizet, the orchestra under the quiet but dynamic leadership of Mr. Schueller did a really splendid example of orchestral playing. Fluent and skillful technique was displayed again and again. The work of the strings was particularly effective, and the woodwind effects were also good.

True to the announced purpose of presenting a work by an American composer at each concert, yesterday's composition on the program by an American was "Symphonic Variations on a 'New England Hymn,'" by Edgar Stillman Kelley. Beauty, delicacy of tonal quality and a picturesque theme predominating throughout the number, the audience was enthusiastic in its applause at its conclusion.

A huge floral horseshoe wishing good luck to the organization was presented to Mr. Schueller at the conclusion of the program. The conductor generously got the entire orchestra to stand in acknowledgement of the ovation. E. E. P.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, Jan. 31—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia—Fair with rising temperature Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably rain Sunday afternoon or night; gentle variable winds, becoming moderate southerly Sunday.

The Atlantic coast disturbance has continued to move northeastward over the ocean, being central tonight southeast of Newfoundland, S. S. George Washington, 29.38 inches. A disturbance of wide extent and considerable intensity is centered over the Gulf of Alaska, Cordova, 29.12 inches, and pressure is falling southeastward to Alberta and the North Pacific coast. Another disturbance is apparently developing over the far Southwest, El Paso, Tex., 29.90 inches. These disturbances have caused precipitation, mostly light, in the North Pacific States, the northern Plateau region, the Lake region, the extreme upper Mississippi and the upper Ohio Valleys, and the northern Appalachian region. An extensive area of high pressure is moving eastward with center over the East Gulf States, Pensacola, Fla., 30.38 inches, and another is over the Plateau region and California, Winnemucca, Nev., 30.42 inches. The temperature has risen slightly over the greater part of the United States, except the Lake region, Minnesota and North Dakota, and it is now above normal over most sections west of the Mississippi River.

Fair weather will prevail in the Washington forecast district Saturday, but the eastward advance of the southwestern disturbance will be attended by much cloudiness on Sunday, and rain is probable as far East as Appalachian Mountains Sunday, and the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States Sunday afternoon or night. The temperature will rise gradually during the next two days, almost generally in the Eastern and Southeastern States.

KITTY TAYLOR
WASHINGTON, D.C.

FEBRUARY 1, 1905.

Paderewski, famous pianist, made his Washington debut at the National Theater.

Cold wave brought thermometer to 2 degrees below zero.

Luther Place Memorial Church was reopened after renovations had been made. Church was partially destroyed by fire a year ago.

Boy drowned when ice broke in Rock Creek.

Police guard in Southwest section doubled by Maj. Sylvester as a result of numerous burglaries.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

AFTER more than the usual amount of pushing and hauling, backing and filling, yessing and noing, it has been tentatively decided, if nothing comes up to prevent it, and barring accident, change of mind and act of Providence, that "Happy Days," the Fox all-star special dialogue, song and dance production, will NOT be the attraction at the local Fox Theater the week of February 8. It will, instead, providing again, of course, that vacillation does not once more get the upper hand, be shown the week of March 1.

This, as I understand it, is because the Fox executives, for the moment, are determined to introduce their Grandeur Film to Washington through the medium of this picture, and the installation of the new equipment can not be completed prior to the 1st of March. So it will be here then, unless Mr. Fox develops a contrary opinion. Maj. Zanft catches cold or Dave Idzal throws a shoe!

By the way, what will, I hope, come into the Fox on February 8, is "Harmony At Home," a picturization of Harry Delf's comedy of "The Family Upstairs," in which the principal roles are played by William Collier, sr., Marguerite Churchill and Dixie Lee.

A formal card of announcement from the Warner Bros. theaters in the Capital reaches this desk to herald the establishment of a Public Relations Department and the appointment of Mrs. S. M. Parker as director, "for the purpose of rendering greater service for community welfare and closer relationship between the public and the Warner Bros.' theaters." Mrs. Parker's headquarters will be in the executive offices of the Warner Bros. Co., in the Metropolitan Theater Building, 932 F street northwest.

I am not informed of the differences, if any, between the newly formed department and that recently abolished with Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher as its head.

Another communication received in the same mail, in addition to containing many other remarks of a soul-warming and highly appreciated nature, is in part as follows:

"I wonder if it would be asking too much of you to mention the fact that my sister, Marjorie Joesting, formerly, 'Miss Washington of 1926,' has a minor part in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture, 'Chasing Rainbows,' being shown at the Columbia Theater. She is one of the eight show girls in the technicolor scene in which Charlie King sings 'Love is Nothing but the Blues.'

"Since this is the first showing in Washington of any picture in which she has had a part, we believed her many friends and acquaintances here would be interested to learn of it.

"Other pictures in which she has larger parts are 'The Night Hostess,' with Blanche Sweet, and 'Lord Byron of Broadway.' Yours sincerely,

"(Signed) ALVA M. JOESTING."

It is a pleasure.

The Washington Film Board of Trade at its recent election held in the City Club elected the following officers: Harry Brown, manager of the Tiffany Branch Exchange, president; Rudolph Berger, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, vice president, and John Dillon, Fox, secretary-treasurer.

The board of governors is composed of: John Dillon, Fox; Howard Beaver, Educational; Harry Hunter, Paramount; Ralph Binns, Warner Bros., and Nate Sauber, Universal. James B. Fitzgerald continues as executive secretary.

E. T. C.—The matters concerned in your letter of January 30 being wholly outside the purview of this department, that communication has been referred to Mr. M. J. Cullen, managing director of the Loew interests in this city. The action outlined in your last paragraph, however, seems a feasible solution of an acute problem.

Old Man Opportunity Uses Day Off to Knock on Wood

Armistice With Weather Man to Stay in Effect Today While Workers Seek 100,000 Extra Votes in Post Campaign.

"I hear you've been taking the day off," remarked a reporter as he pulled up a chair beside Old Man Opportunity. "They say that when a postman has a day off he takes a walk and that a mason gets 'plastered.' What did you do with your spare time?"

"I spent it knocking on wood," replied the Old Man. "Of course you knew that the weather man and I had signed an armistice, but he is a knight of the double-cross and I feared that he might resume hostilities."

"He promised to give me fair weather today and to turn on the heat sufficiently to remove some of this snow, and the agreement is also supposed to be in effect for Saturday. He was highly pleased with my surrender and, although he did not bind himself to do so, he said he would 'give me a break' on Sunday."

"That sounds fine," said the reporter. "While I think of it—where's Chance today?"

"Come out there, C. D.," called old Joe, throwing open a closet door and revealing Mr. C. D. Chance suspended by his jacket from a coat-hook, while a small dog, snoozed peacefully at his feet.

"You see," he said, "Chance has been falling down so much on these slippery pavements that he must take his rest in a perpendicular position. He's been busy today, too, although the police dog has aided him greatly."

"Police dog?" queried the reporter. "That pup looks like a fox terrier to me."

"Exactly," said Chance, emerging from the closet. "But you see he's in the secret service."

"What does he do?" asked the reporter.

"Well, you've heard about the dogs who succor travelers in the Alps," stated Chance. "He does the same thing for candidates in The Post $20,000 Opportunity Campaign."

"Does he carry a little flask?" asked the reporter, reaching eagerly for the dog's collar.

"No," answered Chance. "He carries 100,000 extra votes for each $20 worth of new subscriptions turned in by candidates before 9 p. m., on February 19.

"That's my special offer to enable new candidates quickly to bring their number of votes to a par with earlier entrants. And it is positively the greatest vote-offer that will be made during the entire campaign," he added.

"Well, any man or woman who doesn't take advantage of that is sure deaf to your knock," said the reporter as he arose to go.

"By the way, How much is that dog worth?"

"About $10,000," answered Chance.

"Who left it to him?" the reporter shouted as he staggered down the stairs.

DR. SIZOO IS CALLED TO NEW YORK PULPIT

Pastorate of Marble Church Is Offered to Capital Clergyman.

PARISH AWAITS DECISION

Members of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church expect to learn at the morning service tomorrow whether their pastor, the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, intends to accept a call to the pastorate of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, of New York City.

Dr. Sizoo was elected a pastor of the Collegiate Reformed Protestant Dutch Church at a meeting two weeks ago of the Great Consistory, the governing body of the church. The Marble Church is one of the eleven houses of worship of the church group. Soon after this election, Dr. Sizoo received a visit from a delegation of the consistory when he was asked to take over the pastorate of the Marble Church.

Dr. Sizoo said yesterday that he would not announce his decision until members of his church are gathered before him. He said that there was some likelihood that he would make an announcement at the morning service tomorrow. He added that he might postpone the announcement until a later date.

If Dr. Sizoo accepts the new pastorate he will succeed the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, whose resignation took effect January 1. Dr. Sizoo has been pastor of the New York Avenue Church for the last 5½ years. The local church is famous because of its attendance by many Presidents. Among these was Abraham Lincoln, whose pew still stands in the church. Dr. Sizoo, incidentally, is the author of a book on Lincoln as well as one on Bryan.

Born in Holland, Dr. Sizoo came to this country at the age of 7. He was ordained a minister in the Reformed Church in 1910. He spent two years as a missionary in India. He was an Army chaplain overseas during the World War. He officiated at the funeral of William Jennings Bryan in 1925. He came to Washington from Somerville, N. J.

Fliers Burned Crashing Ship to Avoid Collision

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Lieut. J. H. Parant, 35, of Rockaway Beach, Long Island, and Lieut. H. B. Hutchinson, 37, of Long Beach, Calif., aviators attached to the airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington, were burned severely here today when they wrecked their biplane to avoid collision with a civilian ship as they took off from the Municipal Airport.

Witnesses said Lieut. Parant, who was at the controls, was speeding down the runway for a take-off when a civilian ship cut across his path. The pilot banked sharply, hooking a wing against a hangar. The impact hurled the plane to earth and burst the gasoline tanks, which caught fire. The two fliers were rescued by field attendants who plunged into the flames and dragged them to safety. Physicians said the aviators will recover. The plane was destroyed.

Score of Isolated Duck Hunters Go Unrescued

Ocean City, Md., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The score of duck hunters, marooned yesterday by the storm on the Sinepuxent Coastal Peninsula, 23 miles from here, were still unrescued today. Snowdrifts, several feet deep, balked the efforts of several automobile parties which started from here last night in an effort to reach the stranded men, who had intended to return to their Eastern Shore homes today, the end of the wild fowl season in the State.

The hunters are believed to be sheltered in a shack built near the duck blinds, and safe from exposure. They, however, took only enough food to last them until today.

Zoning Injunction Refused by Judge

Effort to Force Change in Classification of K Street Lot.

Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, yesterday refused to grant a mandatory injunction to compel the Zoning Commission to change classification of property on K street northwest, west of Sixteenth street, as other than residential.

Justice Stafford, in his ruling, held that the plaintiffs in the action had failed to make out a prima facie case.

The suit was brought some time ago by Henrietta B. Bugher, Frederick McLean Bugher and Alvin Undermyer, trustees under the will of Frederick H. Bugher, and H. Rozier Dulany, jr., Kate W. Dulany and F. Carrigan Weems, owners of the properties.

DODGING THE ISSUES.

The London naval conference managed to avoid an open deadlock on Thursday by postponing the Franco-Italian parity issue and by referring the Franco-British naval measurement issue to a committee.

Italy stands unchanged, determined to have naval parity with France, and France stands unchanged, determined not to concede parity to Italy.

The committee set up to deal with the problem which the delegates themselves have been unable to solve—the method of measuring naval forces—has been unable to meet on account of a controversy between Great Britain and the dominions. The self-governing dominions of the British commonwealth are asserting themselves, much to the embarrassment of Prime Minister MacDonald. They will not permit him to deal with the British navy for purposes of English politics. They insist upon being represented in negotiations affecting their own security. They are no longer content to be counted as belonging to the empire when men are wanted at the front, and to be ignored when England chooses to ignore them. The present conference is bringing sharply into view the inconsistency of a political structure that attempts to be a single empire in some respects and a community of independent nations in other respects.

No doubt the intestine disturbance will pass, and the dominions will obtain the recognition they demand.

Talk of "global" and "category" methods of measuring naval forces is idle at this time, because methods of measurement, even if agreed upon, can not be applied until the conference agrees upon fundamental issues. The issues are Franco-Italian parity, Anglo-American parity, and Japan's demand for proportionately increased cruiser tonnage.

If Premier Tardieu should agree that Italy is entitled to a navy as large as that of France he would destroy the entire French position, as set forth in the note accepting the invitation to the conference and in notes to Italy. M. Tardieu can not make such a concession and hope to remain premier of France. He has committed himself to Parliament and the French people in opposition to the Italian demand. No agreement on measurement of naval strength can change the intention of France to retain naval superiority over Italy. As for Italy, its sole aim is to reach parity with France, by France's acquiescence. So the deadlock is complete. This situation should have been understood by Ramsay MacDonald before he called the conference; but he cheerfully brings the nations together, confidently believing that he can talk them into a surrender of their interests and advantages.

Japan's delegates are required by their emperor to secure a proportionate increase in cruiser strength. Other delegations may make concessions for the sake of an agreement, but if the Japanese go contrary to their instructions they may be invited to commit hara-kiri when they return. Australia and New Zealand are not ready to concede Japan's demand—and Australia and New Zealand have a voice in the disposition of the British navy. Mr. MacDonald is laboring with them when he should be laboring with France and Italy.

Now that the delegations are compelled to make odious comparisons and to bear in mind the punishment that awaits them at home if they make concessions imperiling the interests of their respective countries, the conference will be fortunate if it ends with the great powers as friendly as they were in 1929.

CITIZEN SEAMEN.

The merchant marine acts of 1920 and 1928 were enacted to stimulate the reestablishment of American shipping on the high seas. The mail subvention clauses of the latter acts were inserted to make possible the profitable operation of American ships in competition with those of other nations. But ships without competent seamen are valueless. Of what good would an American merchant marine be if, in a period of emergency when the country had to depend entirely upon itself and its own man power, there were no citizen-seamen? The vital necessity of training citizens as seamen is recognized in the act of 1928, section 405 of which reads, in part, as follows:

> From and after the enactment of this act and for a period of four years, upon the departure from the United States of a vessel employed in ocean mail service under this title, one-half of the crew (including all employes of the ship other than officers) shall be citizens of the United States and, thereafter, two-thirds of the crew as above defined shall be citizens of the United States.

This is one of the most important sections of the merchant marine act. The circumstance that makes necessary Government assistant in reestablishing the merchant marine, namely, the fact that vessels can be constructed more cheaply in foreign shipyards, obtains with respect to the pay of crews. Under the law, American seamen must be paid upon a specified scale, the rates being considerably higher than those that prevail abroad. Shipowners and masters take on foreign crews to the limit permitted under the law, and recently, it is charged, the practice of taking on foreigners beyond the limit permitted by the law is becoming more widespread.

Under present practice, shipmasters are required to make affidavit as to the citizenship of their crews, but such affidavits generally are looked upon as pro forma requirements. In view of the high turnover of crew personnel in foreign ports it is practically impossible to check the correctness of the information contained in an affidavit upon the return of a vessel to an American port. Section 405 demands more than the voluntary cooperation of shipowners and masters. Authority to administer this section of the merchant marine act should be vested in the immigration service.

BRAZILIAN EDUCATORS.

Development of a cultural affinity among nations of the two American continents is rightly considered one of the most important steps toward better understanding and more frequent communication. Educators of the United States are generally favorable toward study of the history, language and problems of the Latin-American republics. The rapid growth of trade between North and South America and the general development of the southern republics makes mutual understanding not only desirable, but necessary.

It is gratifying to find a group of distinguished Brazilian educators in Washington on a tour of the United States to study educational methods. They are no doubt anxious to profit by any experience of educators in this country which might be applied to the schools of Brazil. The advantages of bringing the two peoples closer to a cultural understanding through the medium of the public schools are mutual. The Post welcomes the delegation to Washington and wishes its members success in their mission.

MR. FORT'S SPEECH.

Representative Fort's speech on prohibition will meet with cool response from organized wets and drys. His insistence that the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act should and will be retained will not meet with the approval of the wet element. His contention that there is nothing in the law to prevent the manufacture of home brew will displease the drys. But it remains to be seen whether or not he has struck a note that will appeal to the "middle of the roaders"—those whose numbers are considerable and who are ready to grasp at any proposal that promises to improve the present situation.

Wets and drys alike have insisted that home manufacture of wines and beer violates the spirit, if not the letter of the law. Dealers in malt and home brewing supplies have been charged with entering into conspiracies against the law. The grape growers of California were asked to enter into a pact to prevent, so far as possible, the product of their vineyards from being pressed into wine. It has even been contended that the dealer in bottles, corks and bottle caps is a conspirator against the prohibition laws. Representative Fort makes the suggestion that through home brewing the way is open to quasi-nullification or, at least, evasion of the eighteenth amendment.

ANOTHER CURE FOR WAR.

Fortunately few people take Sir Thomas Holland's noted prescription for abolition of war seriously. Choosing a metaphor especially calculated to appeal to the American public, he suggested to the Royal Society of Arts in London that the "sparking plug" be removed from the engines of war. His reasoning is that since artillery, munitions, tanks, trucks, battleships and a hundred other implements of war are manufactured of metal, all that is necessary to make war forever impossible is to prohibit the importation of metals by belligerents.

Once before Sir Thomas suggested that, inasmuch as the United States and Great Britain control about three-fourths of the workable mineral deposits of the world, these two powers should take it upon themselves to keep the peace. No one seemed very enthusiastic about the scheme, so he has evolved a more ambitious program and timed its announcement to synchronize with the London Naval Conference. It remains to be seen whether the conference will abandon its negotiations over naval tonnage and consider a padlock system for the world's mines.

Sir Thomas would have all the signatories of the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war adopt an additional clause empowering their governments to prohibit exportation of mineral products to any nation violating the treaty. Apparently it does not occur to this distinguished metallurgist that different governments might make different decisions as to which of the disputing nations violated the Kellogg pact. Assuming that the law of averages would continue in force, half the countries would be supplying minerals to one belligerent and half to the other.

It is an injustice, however, to consider this plan so seriously. Sir Thomas is a metallurgist. He knows the needs of the industry. Nothing could be more certain than a boom in mining if any international pact should threaten to cut off the mineral supply. It would become imperative for each nation to amass large supplies to guarantee security. The mining industry would be called upon to supply these demands and an extensive development would be the result. The subtlety of this scheme qualifies Sir Thomas as an advertising expert, but why should it bring him fame among the pacifists?

Local distributors report an overproduction of milk. Somebody ought to call the cows together and inform them that the Farm Board is officially opposed to overproduction.

That fellow who is counting the particles of dust in the air of New York would be the right man to enumerate the laws to be passed this year.

Dr. Mitchell, of the University of Virginia, has been measuring the paths of 1,000 stars. Surprising how they're deserting Hollywood these days.

Commissioner Whalen will ask New York State regents to authorize degrees for graduates of Manhattan's police college. Third degrees?

The first robin is reported, but we won't believe it's spring until the cherry blossom forecast is published.

ITALIAN ART IN THE CAPITOL

By CHARLES E. FAIRMAN,

Curator of Art of the Capitol, in an Address Before the Italy-America Society of Washington.

II.

Other artists of Italian birth—Cappalano, of Florence; Causici, of Verona, and Persico, of Naples, who did not measure up to the high standards attained by the artists of the Capitol from Carrara—found employment at the Capitol. Employed on the figures of the sculpture of the Senate pediment were Guido Butti, Tomasso Gagliardi, Francis Vincenti, and Casoni, whose names appear on the pay rolls and vouchers of the late fifties.

It is to Tomasso Gagliardi that we are indebted for the bust of Thomas Crawford in the north corridor gallery floor of the Senate wing of the Capitol. Gagliardi is described by one of the apprentices as the most famous carver of all. His life was a romance embracing in his wanderings many countries. He was associated with Larkin G. Mead in the construction of the Lincoln Monument at Springfield, Ill. Butti was described as the most versatile of all, being an excellent designer and modeler as well as a sculptor of distinction. His work on the archway of the entrance on Eighth street to the Postoffice Building is a work of a high order.

While the works executed by the artists named may not seem to have as high a degree of merit as that possessed by the first Italians engaged upon the art works of the Capitol, the artistic balance was regained in the middle fifties with the advent of Constantino Brumidi, whose connection with the mural decorations of the Capitol lasted for nearly a quarter of a century.

Brumidi and his work may seem more closely related to the art life of Washington for the reason that having been in political disfavor in Rome, intercession was made for his release as a political prisoner coupled with the permission to leave Italy for the United States. Brumidi commenced his work in the Capitol by the decoration of a committee room then occupied by the House committee on agriculture, and now by one of the subcommittees of the House committee on appropriations. It is to be regretted that this first example of the work of Brumidi, and as claimed by Brumidi, the first example of "real fresco" in the United States, should occupy a room where but few can examine it and where it is never seen by the general public.

Another example of the work in fresco by Brumidi is to be found in the southwest corner on the wall of the House of Representatives * * * a picture entitled: "Cornwallis sues for a cessation of hostilities under a flag of truce," and then as a touch of defiance to the Know Nothing Party with their slogan, "America for Americans," signed this work "C. Brumidi, American citizen." * * *

But the reputation of Brumidi does not rest upon this example of his work. His most ambitious composition is his Apotheosis of Washington, painted in the canopy of the rotunda, sometimes spoken of as the eye of the dome. In this work he has idealized Washington to the dignity of a mythological personage and has surrounded him with adoring groups, symbolizing the thirteen original States. It may be a step too far toward the mythology of other ages, but the daring conception and the knowledge to paint groups for observation at a great distance shows his ability to judge of effects as seen from the floor of the rotunda. Other important work included the decoration of the room now occupied as a committee room by the Senate committee on appropriations, in which the lunettes are decorated with scenes illustrating important events in the Revolutionary War.

In these paintings he has touched a high mark in the excellency of mural decorations of his period, or for that matter, any period. His compositions are full of the spirit of action and his coloring strong and marked with a refinement that emphasizes the artist who works for the joy of creating something of lasting beauty rather than for the purpose of the transformation of his efforts into a matter of pecuniary recompense. The office of the sergeant at arms of the Senate and the committee room of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia were also decorated by Brumidi, but his greatest triumph of his art as a mural painter may be found in the President's room in the Senate wing of the Capitol. In this room on the side walls are creditable portraits of the members of the first Cabinet of President Washington, and in the ceiling may be found portraits of Columbus, Vespucius, Franklin and Brewster, and in ceiling circles of good size are groups of which religion and liberty seem to be the most attractive. The side walls are also decorated with narrow panels of floral design interspersed with a multitude of small independent decorations, some related, others holding their place by that rare charm of beauty which in itself furnishes an ample excuse for its place in the decorative scheme of this wonderful room.

Following Brumidi, the tide of preference swings again to the art of the sculptor as a representation of the part Italy has had in the continuance of the art work of the Capitol. In this connection the most conspicuous instance is the work of Gaetano Trentanove, the sculptor of the statue of Marquette.

Danta Sodini, one of the later Italian sculptors, is represented in Statuary Hall by the statue of J. M. L. Curry, diplomat, soldier and statesman. Sodini, as well as Trentanove, are residents of Florence, Italy, the city of which Antonio Cappelano, one of the sculptors of the period marked by the work in the rotunda, also claimed as his home.

The last of the trio of modern Italian sculptors to find a place for his work in Statuary Hall, where are now assembled 58 statues, is Pompeo Coppini, who claims Moglia in the Province of Mantua, as his birthplace. Mr. Coppini should know something of our Capital City, as he was an assistant to the sculptor Hinton Perry in the Neptune Fountain fronting the Library of Congress.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

The time to begin work on a bad cold is immediately after the first sneeze, and I am writing this letter in an effort to head off trouble before it gets well started.

You are beginning to show symptoms of an epidemic malady called "gold-digging," and I'd like to warn you of its dangers before it becomes chronic.

I'm not alarmed. In fact, I think one treatment will cut you, for you seem to have a natural immunity to disorders of a similar nature.

For example, you pay your social debts.

If you get a Christmas card or gift from somebody who wasn't on your list, you hasten to make amends; and you don't feel respectable unless you give an occasional party to repay those who have entertained you.

In short, you believe in fair play, and accept the theory that nobody has a right to take if he won't give.

And that brings us to the milk in the coconut.

This is an age of sex equality, when girls have jobs and earn about as much money as boys do.

And the girl who permits her boy friends to pay all the bills while she keeps her money to spend on herself is a cheat and a rotten sport.

Many people don't agree with that, for it has always been customary for men to give and women to take; but philanthropists usually have something up their sleeve, and the man who gives much expects much.

A girl may accept presents from the man she intends to marry, for she can repay promptly by sewing on his buttons; but the schoolgirl who accepts presents, knowing she can make no return, is a common little gold-digger.

As a rule, the modern flapper isn't capable of making any return. She can't talk intelligently or entertainingly; she can't sing or make music well enough to deserve a reward; she can't do anything to pay for lunches and theater tickets and automobile rides—except pet.

Trading kisses for candy doesn't seem very romantic, but the boy who spends his money to make a girl's life pleasant expects some kind of return—and usually gets it.

That is a fair commercial arrangement, of course; but it reduces the girl almost to the level of those who aren't spoken of in polite society.

If you take without giving, you cheat; if you so much as hold hands to give the boy his money's worth, you make yourself as common as a hired mule; and since you can't repay and keep your self-respect the only decent course is to refrain from taking.

Accept candy as the boy's fair contribution to the evening's entertainment; accept a birthday gift if you expect to give one in return; but don't sacrifice your pride and independence by accepting favors you can't or won't repay. Love, DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

GASOLINE AND THE F. O. B. IDEA.

It is announced that an oil company applying the principle used in the automobile industry, will fix its prices of gasoline on a "factory" basis, plus a fixed handling charge, plus freight. The price of gas to the ultimate consumer will be figured to the tenth of a cent. Thus the price in a seaport city may be 16.3 per gallon, and in a town 50 miles away 17.6.

* * * *

Thanks to the company, any lengthy stay at the wheel of an automobile from now on will combine the features of a tour, a mathematical workout and an anagram party.

* * * *

The outlook for misunderstandings and arguments at pumping stations this spring and summer in a case when the motorists or the gas-station attendant isn't quick at fractions is splendid.

* * * *

In New York City, for instance, a gallon of gas will cost you 17 and 3-10 cents. In Yonkers, a few miles outside, you must pay 18 and 3-10, and if you go on to Brewster you will have to come across with 18 and 8-10 cents per gallon.

* * * *

In other words, no matter where you buy your gas you will come home with a vestful of pennies and only a vague idea whether you've made any errors in arithmetic or not.

It seems like a good idea. Why not apply it to tires, pennants, pinwheels, road maps, goggles, monkey wrenches, frankfurters, soda pop and all the other commodities that come under the head of automobile supplies.

* * * *

And this would be an innovation, too:

Richmond, Va..... $24.12
Perth Amboy, N. J.... $19.11 2-3

JUST FOLKS

THE STRONG MAN.

The strong man lifted heavy weights
My hands lacked strength to move,
That he had muscles better trained
That only served to prove.

The strong man twisted iron bars
As I a match would break,
That only proves the stronger wrists
By tests that mortals make.

But if the strong man showing there
Were tempted to a lie,
I wonder could he stronger be
In such a test than I?

He lifts great weights with arms of steel,
But if his child should die,
I wonder has he stronger faith
For such a grief than I?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Extra! Attack on "Foreigners" in Washington, Who Know Nothing of Old Times.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For the benefit of the "foreigners" who now infest and make this city anything but what it was years ago—the greatest old town or village in the world to live in—let an old timer tell them we had some snowstorms and blizzards back in the 90s, one of which will always be referred to as the "great blizzard." It makes the present visitation of the beautiful look like a Fourth of July celebration. For three days people just dug their way out of the mountains of snow. On top of it a howling wind was blowing the snow in banks up to second-story windows of many houses.

There was a slight aperture under the closed doors of the Columbia Theater through which the wind beat the snow into banks along the walls of the theater lobby. In those days the jingle bells of the sleighs could be heard along the Avenue for weeks at a time, and the carnivals held there were the outstanding local events of the year. It was an almost everyday sight to see boys and girls of a generation ago coasting down Franklin hill while their merry laughter filled the air.

The present visitation of the beautiful warms the cockles of the old-timer's heart, which again is chilled by the "foreigners" or newcomers who now infest the city, and makes it no more like old Washington than "I to Hercules." Ugh!

Women's Clubs Urged to Throw Patronage to Firms That Do Not Deface the Landscape.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The General Federation of Women's Clubs in its anti-billboard campaign this season has urged each club to take three steps: To pledge favor to products not advertised on the landscape; to publish this action in the local press; and to send this statement to every firm using rural billboards in that locality. Mrs. W. L. Lawton, chairman of the committee on highway advertising, says: "If two products are offered us, equally good, one made by a firm which spoils the landscape and the other by a firm which is helping us to save the landscape, shall we not favor the firm which favors the landscape?"

Mrs. Lawton is leaving no stones unturned in her endeavor to bring before the eyes of the public the unsightly effects of roadside billboards. She motored about 5,000 miles in Maine, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Vermont and Virginia, taking 400 photographs, and has provided each of the above States with a special program and slides on roadside advertising. The firms that are responsible for the erection of these signs can be made to realize their error by the united cooperation of all citizens to patronize the firms who do not employ this mode of advertising. Some of the States are trying to abolish the billboards. All the States from Maine to California should join in the abolition of these detriments to natural beauty. NATURE.

Classic Failures to Suppress Personal Rights Cited for Senator Howell's Information.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Doubtless Senator Howell's drastic bill was purposed as a political gesture to benefit his home electorate, but it is well to bear in mind history's examples of colossal failures at drastic legislation or action.

Henry VII of England issued a ukase, forbidding the wearing in Ireland of the coulon, a peculiar style of wearing the whiskers. Even the women tried to raise beards to flaunt this attempt at personal rights.

An eminent Russian told me of the failure of the late czar to suppress the manufacture and consumption of vodka. As the czar was a law unto himself and his Cossacks could smash down doors ad libitum or ad nauseam, as one views it, we wonder why Senator Howell believes that more drastic laws might bring about an "arid" land?

Prohibition is now at such a crisis that writers of future comic opera plots will find much material from which plots can be constructed.

Attorney General Mitchell Applauded for Putting None But Friends of Prohibition on Guard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your paper carries the news item that Attorney General Mitchell has decided to submit a questionnaire for all applicants for prohibition enforcement officers. Right here is where I want to express what I believe to be the sentiments of many people in this country who have been standing quietly by watching and waiting for some one to go at this problem with hammer and tongs and put some kick into this law. Everybody who has given any serious thought to this question knows that no law can be efficiently enforced unless and until those who are to enforce it believe in it themselves.

Attorney General Mitchell is on the right track, and if he weeds out all those high-up jobs, the little fellows will be bound to fall through sheer lack of support. Meantime, all the country has eyes on the Attorney General. More power to his hand. Go to it, Mr. Mitchell, let the ax fall where it will!

Crossing Accidents Emphasize Necessity of Better Methods of Preventing Tragedies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many deaths have occurred recently caused by motor vehicles colliding with railroad trains. Washington is not free of this danger, as witness the tragedy at the crossing in Takoma Park a few months ago. Better means should be devised for saving human lives at railroad crossings. This type of accident is usually caused by negligence. Therefore they can be prevented. The construction of viaducts or tunnels at all railroad crossings should be pressed as fast as possible. POLICE FIRE ON REDS IN HAMBURG RIOTING 25 Arrested, Casualties Not Checked, as Disorders in City Continue.

BERLIN MOBS RESTIVE

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 31 (A.P.). Communist disorders that broke out yesterday and this morning continued tonight despite the presence of large forces of police concentrated in working-class centers. The atmosphere in the city was tense.

Large groups of unemployed refused to obey orders to disperse, and police used their weapons in breaking up gatherings, many persons were injured.

The most serious fighting occurred at a new building where the unemployed tried to force workers to lay down their tools tomorrow as a prelude to a sympathetic strike. The police opened fire on the demonstrators when other methods failed to check them.

Peaceful citizens in all sections of Hamburg were frequently manhandled by the police, who were unable to distinguish them from the demonstrators.

Twenty persons were arrested during the day, but the total number of the casualties had not been estimated this evening.

The entire police force was ordered to prepare for emergency duty tonight in case the demonstrators caused a riot.

Late tonight the police issued a statement saying they had the situation completely in hand. They pointed out especially that the rioting was confined to a small area.

Berlin, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The entire police force of the capital was ordered on emergency duty tomorrow to prevent communistic demonstrations. The reds had announced plans for the demonstrations despite a recent order by the minister of the interior prohibiting open-air meetings. The plans called for assemblage of groups of unemployed at various points in the city whence they would march to a central meeting place.

The police warned that they would use firearms if necessary to stop the demonstration.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

Of course, it is quite evident, especially in view of the feeling reflected in the White House statement, that the President had nothing to do with Representative Fort's speech. But one thing is sure and certain and that is that it is symptomatic of a growing feeling of unrest in the Republican councils over the way in which prohibition has come to be saddled upon Mr. Hoover's shoulders.

Mr. Fort's speech was the move of an individualist. It attracts attention and will be discussed for many days because it develops that there is such a thing as a Republican individualist. Why, Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, got up in the House several months ago and said he was not in favor of extending the President's tariff-making power. It was so unusual for a Republican to speak individualistically that Mr. Beck's name was on the front pages all over the country.

• • • •

BUT there is to be more individualism on this prohibition question, and among drys and wets alike. There is to be more individualistic running for political shelter.

The Republican party houses some of the strongest, most influential and most intellectual wets in the country. As a matter of fact, the Democrats have only a few noisy ones. The influential wets, such as Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, Speaker Longworth and Majority Leader Tilson, to name only a few, are Republicans.

Now in so far as prohibition as a political question is concerned, it was settled for such men as Messrs. Longworth, Tilson, Beck and Chairman Graham of the House judiciary committee, when the Volstead act was passed.

There are others in their shoes in the House. They have not jumped up every day and introduced wet proposals. They have gone along on the business that the law must be enforced and have steadily voted the appropriations for enforcement that the appropriations committee brought out.

• • • •

THERE is no tendency to break away from this policy now. But a new picture has been painted, whether by the Democrats or just the natural sequence of events and that is that Mr. Hoover "has gone over lock, stock and barrel to the Anti-saloon League." Maybe, Mr. Hoover has had nothing like this in mind. Very probably, in fact, he is just as anxious to get this prohibition yoke from around his neck as any one else.

Take Mr. Fort. There is no questioning his dryness. He is of more service to the dry cause than a dozen Cramptons, Clarence True Wilsons or Bishop Cannons. But what has happened in his State?

A moribund Antisaloon League has taken heart and made a bid for control of the State. Mr. Fort must dissociate himself from the national picture that encouraged this. Even the constitutional dry, Mr. Borah, is against a return of Antisaloon League domination.

Isn't it rather significant that Judge Graham should decide to give the wets a hearing on their wet bills. Although a wet, the drys could not have wanted a better man than he these past several years. He has done nothing against them and has voted their appropriations without a murmur of complaint.

TRADE BOARD FEAST TO HAVE 821 GUESTS

New York Revue Booked as Feature of Midwinter Dinner Tonight.

PERSHING WILL ATTEND

The annual midwinter dinner of the Washington Board of Trade will be held tonight at the Willard Hotel. "Inside the Red Mill, Montmartre, Paris," will be the theme of the show which will be held in conjunction with the dinner.

Gen. John J. Pershing leads a list of 73 senators, representatives and ranking public officials who will be guests of the board. Reservations have been made for 821, which is the largest number to attend in the history of the organization.

The entire cast of the revue will be direct from New York. Amplifiers have been placed in the hall for the performance.

A stage in the form of a red mill has been built in the Willard ballroom. So that the actors may go directly from the dressing rooms to the stage, without passing through the hall a special corridor and stairway has been built.

Jerome F. Barnard is general chairman of the committee. Fred East is chairman in charge of entertainment. E. J. Murphy, president of the board, will preside. There will be no speeches.

Publisher Is Arrested As Trespasser in Plant

Spartanburg, S. C., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—William Laverre, newspaper publisher, was arrested today on a charge of malicious trespass after notice on a warrant sworn out last night by J. T. Webb, jr., Federal court commissioner. He gave $300 bond for appearance in court. No date has been set for trial.

Lavarre's arrest came after he had entered the building of the Spartanburg Herald last night over Webb's protest. Webb, earlier yesterday, had been ejected from the building of the Columbia Record. Both newspapers and the Spartanburg Journal had been controlled by Lavarre. Following litigation in which Harold Hall alleged he was Lavarre's partner, Judge Bascom S. Deaver in the Federal Court appointed Webb and P. T. Anderson to take charge of the three South Carolina newspapers and the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle.

Spanked Son, 21, Sues His Father for $75,000

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Declaration of a suit seeking $75,000 damages from his father, George F. Blei, partner of the steel firm of Hollingshead & Blei, was filed in Superior Court today by George W. Blei, 21.

The youth alleges "extreme cruelty" on the part of his father, listing, among other charges, whippings for receiving poor grades. The bill states that he left home last August, when he reached the age of 21. The elder Blei declined to comment on the suit.

Royalist Kidnaping Laid to Red Envoys

Gen. Koutiepoff Is Held in Embassy, Newspapers in Paris Charge.

Paris, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Several Paris newspapers openly charged today that Gen. Alexander Paul Koutiepoff, leader of the Russian Royalists, who disappeared mysteriously last Sunday morning, is being held in the Soviet Embassy here. The papers stated he had been taken there after being kidnaped on the street. The charge was not confined to anti-Soviet publications. It aroused as much discussion as the earlier story of a purported witness to the kidnaping, who said that he saw the general hustled into a red taxicab which immediately sped away.

L'Intransigeant, a generally staid newspaper, devoted considerable space to discussing the procedure that could be followed by the French police in case it proves true that the general was being held in the Russian Embassy.

It was pointed out that such a situation would entail diplomatic difficulties because of the extraterritoriality privileges.

liquidation of the Kulak class, however, as the last decisive step toward freeing the country from the capitalistic elements that have no place here."

The Moscow newspapers today print reports from widely separated regions that even Communists in many villages are refusing to enter collective farms and are joining the Kulaks in their resistance. Such Communists are branded as traitors and deserters and are being expelled from the Communist party.

Strict orders were issued today by the Moscow Central Association of Cooperatives, which practically control the entire food supply of the Moscow region through their stores, that bread, sugar, soap and other necessities must not be sold to Kulaks. The order closes the doors of all cooperative stores to the Kulaks. It also contains instructions for expulsion of all Kulaks from membership in cooperatives. The shares of Kulaks in purchasing cooperatives are to be returned to them when they are expelled.

DR. W. H. P. FAUNCE DEAD AT AGE OF 71

Brown University President Emeritus Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

INDIVIDUAL IN HIS VIEWS

Providence, R. I., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Dr. William Herbert Perry Faunce, president emeritus of Brown University, died late today at his home here.

Death was caused by heart trouble and bronchial pneumonia. Dr. Faunce was in his seventy-first year.

Dr. William H. P. Faunce, for 30 years president of Brown University, had pronounced individualistic views regarding education and college training.

He was an advocate of liberal education as opposed to that along vocational and occupational lines, and believed that a young man about to enter college had not reached the years in which he was competent to choose a career.

Dr. Faunce was born at Worcester, Mass., January 15, 1859, the son of the Rev. Daniel W. and Mary Perry Faunce. He was educated to follow his father in church work, having been graduated from Brown in 1880 and from the Newton Theological Seminary four years later. He served five years as pastor of the State Street Baptist Church at Springfield, Mass., and ten years at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York. In 1899, Dr. Faunce was elected president of Brown University and directed its affairs for 30 years. He then retired.

Upon completing his theological course, Dr. Faunce in June, 1884, married Miss Sarah Rogers Edson, of Lynn, Mass. Their only son, Perry Edson Faunce, died after being graduated from Brown.

Although never an athlete, Dr. Faunce was fond of outdoor sports and indulged in golf and horseback riding for exercise and recreation. He urged all freshmen to enter some form of outdoor sport, but condemned any tendency to make sport a "species of war."

Soldiers to Carry Rifles in the Next Conflict, Is Officer's View.

GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS

The war of the future will see the soldier going to battle with a rifle across his shoulder despite the multiplication of methods for getting rid of human life, Maj. Gen. S. O. Fuqua, chief of Infantry of the United States Army, predicted last night at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the National Rifle Association in the Lafayette Hotel.

Maj. Fuqua said that in his opinion the ordinary hand rifle will never become obsolete. In view of this, he recommended the encouragement of the practice of marksmanship, reminding his listeners that the American marksmen in the World War were far superior to the Germans.

The keynote of the meeting, however, was not the training of young America in the use of the rifle so that the next war will find Americans shooting more of the enemy than the enemy shoots Americans. The thought of war was a minor note despite the large military representation. The idea brought out was the encouragement of marksmanship as a sport. That it is being accepted as a sport was supported by the announcement that there are now 100,000 members in the National Rifle Association.

Benedict Crowell, of Cleveland, war-time Assistant Secretary of War, was elected president of the national association at the meeting.

Other officers elected were: Maj. Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, first vice president; Brig. Gen. G. A. Fraser, of Bismarck, N. Dak., adjutant general of the North Dakota National Guard, second vice president; Karl Frederick, of New York City, third vice president; Brig. Gen. M. A. Reckord, of Baltimore, adjutant general of the Maryland National Guard, executive vice president, and C. B. Lister, of Washington, secretary and treasurer. Three honorary presidents were elected. They are: Brig. Gen. Bird W. Spencer, Newark, N. J.; Lieut. Col. Fred M. Waterbury, New York City, and Col. L. M. Rumsey, jr., of St. Louis, Mo., retiring president.

The following were elected as additional members of the executive committee: Commander H. A. Flanigan, U. S. N.; Maj. S. M. Harrington, U. S. M. C.; Lieut. Col. J. M. Coward, U. S. A.; Maj. L. W. T. Waller, jr., U. S. M. C.; Maj. F. W. Parker, jr., O. R. C., Chicago; Gustavus D. Pope, Detroit; Col. A. J. Macnab, U. S. A.; Col. George E. Kemp, Philadelphia; M. E. McManes, Piqua, Ohio, and Col. C. C. Stanchfield, of Boston, adjutant general of Massachusetts.

SOVIET TO CLOSE MEXICAN LEGATION

Diplomatic Rupture Complete as Moscow Orders Its Envoy to Return.

RED PROTEST IS BLAMED

Mexico City, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Alexander Makar, Russian Minister to Mexico, today received orders from Moscow telling him to close the legation.

This officially completes the severance of relations between the two countries, the break starting when Mexico recalled its representatives from Moscow as a protest against communistic demonstrations made in front of the Mexican Embassies in Washington, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro.

M. Makar said tonight it would take him a week or ten days to dismantle the legation and arrange for shipment of its archives to Europe. He said he would rush this work as much as possible and would try to catch a steamer which sails from Vera Cruz direct for Europe on February 10.

Mme. Boris Pojvalinsky, wife of the first secretary of the legation, had already made plans to leave on the February 10 boat and join her husband, who is spending a vacation in Russia. The legation stenographer, Vadkovsky, also will sail on the tenth.

Boris Troskunoff, commercial attache, will remain after M. Makar and the others have gone in order to clear up any business that may be on hand.

The orders to leave resulted from a message which the minister sent to Moscow after he had called at the foreign office on Wednesday. Until that time he had not been officially advised of Mexico's determination to sever diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

STRIKE OF SPANISH STUDENTS SETTLED

New Berenguer Government Pardons Youth Whose Case Toppled Rivera.

FRANCE TOLD OF CRISIS

Madrid, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The new Spanish government under Gen. Damazo Berenguer capped its first day's work today by settling the strike of university students. It was this strike which gave the first inkling of the crisis which resulted in the downfall of Primo de Rivera.

The Duke of Alba, new minister of education, was given credit for the settlement. He adopted a conciliatory policy and ordered prison authorities to release all student leaders who had been detained by the dictatorship. He also conferred with the university officials and announced that classes would be resumed early next week in the National University of Madrid.

The new government also decided to pardon Antonio Maria Sbert, a student leader, who was long the storm center of the differences between Primo and the university men. Sbert led the Madrid student demonstrations against the dictatorship in the spring of 1929. He was barred from all universities in Spain and banished to Malloria by government decree in April of last year.

Hendaye, France, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Continued agitation in Madrid, with arrests of many prominent persons, were reported by people who crossed the frontier today. A strong movement in favor of an immediate return to constitutional regime persists, say these reports, despite the promise of the new government to provide elections.

posed instead merely an appropriation of $50,000 to finance a study.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, brought up the modified resolution with a request for immediate consideration. Senator Caraway put forward his suggestion but the Idahoan replied he did not have time now to give such a proposition consideration.

"I hope the senator will give it serious consideration," added Caraway.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, offered an amendment to strike out any authority for a commission and to provide instead for sending an "agent" to Haiti to make a study of the troubled conditions there.

Senator Borah indicated he would favor such an amendment, providing it permitted a free hand for the President to make the manner of study he desired. There have been reports that Mr. Hoover was considering sending perhaps only one man to make the Haitian study.

NAVY GLIDER DROPS FROM LOS ANGELES

anism, similar in its operation to the conventional bomb release gear, was operated by a member of the crew aboard the dirigible. The cross-bar was in the same place as the trapeze used last summer in launching and picking up a power-driven airplane, but it carried the glider much closer to the keel.

Glider Wears Parachute.

Lieut. Barnaby, wearing a regulation parachute, rode with Skipper Wiley and the contingent of 47 others, officers and men, until the time had come to "get hatched." He then gave the signal, and in no time at all the first glider had been lib-

The airship was traveling at the rate of 39 miles per hour. The upper air was pretty close to zero as Lieut. Barnaby stepped on the rope ladder. The ladder, because of the wind, did not quite strike the glider, hanging about 3 feet to one side. There was a tense moment in which it looked as though the figure dangling in midair would miss his footing and fall to the ground. He made it with not an inch to spare, and every one above and below felt relieved.

"Cinch," Says Barnaby,

"It was a cinch," said Lieut. Barnaby as he landed. "It was the most pleasant of my 21 years of gliding experience."

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics, who suggested the experiment, stated the glider could be used in conjunction with airships to take on and land passengers without landing, and also, in time of war, to carry men and munitions to inaccessible areas.

The glider, being motorless, could serve in this instance more advantageously than airplanes, as it could land without making a noise.

Pantages Trial Perjury Charges Are Dismissed

Los Angeles, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Perjury charges against Garland Biffle, law book salesman, which grew out of the assault trial of Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire theater man, were dismissed by the Superior Court today. Biffle had been tried twice on the charges, both juries failing to agree upon verdicts.

Biffle was a witness for Pantages. By his testimony the defense sought unsuccessfully to show that the theater man was a victim of a blackmail plot participated in by Miss Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer. Pantages was convicted and sentenced to from 1 to 50 years in prison for assaulting Miss Pringle.

D.A.R. Concert Will Feature Unique Music

Miss Hanenfeldt Plans Novel Program at Event Here.

By JEAN ELIOT.

"MUSIC of the future" will be presented by Miss Zenaide Hanenfeldt in a concert at D. A. R. Memorial Continental Hall on Saturday, February 15, at 8:45. This marks her professional debut in Washington, a Capital in which her mother was a diplomatic debutante some thirty years ago, so the event has special interest to old timers who remember Mme. Hanenfeldt as an embassy belle. Moreover, Miss Hanenfeldt's appearance will have its appeal to the intellectually curious as well as as to lovers of music for her medium of expression in the RCA-Theremin, the ether wave music instrument.

Invented by a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin, a few years ago, this instrument is distinguished by application of the latest scientific discoveries in electro-magnetism and electronics to music. It is dematerialized music—magic music — produced solely by the delicate movements of the hand and fingers in the air without any actual contact with the instrument. And since Miss Hanenfeldt, already a gifted and cultivated musician, is one of the few who have mastered the technique of a revolutionizing invention, it would seem that at least modest fame and fortune are assured.

However, security has come to Miss Hanenfeldt and her mother, Mme. M. M. Hanenfeldt, only after a hard struggle. The daughter of Post Capt. Mertvaga, who was Naval Attache of the Russian Embassy in Washington for a long period while Count Cassini was Ambassador and before, Mme. Hanenfeldt was a belle.

Turning toward America as the land of opportunity after Gen. Hanenfeldt was killed, the young widow set herself to make a living for herself and her daughter. She sold books from door to door in Philadelphia. She lectured, she taught, and at one time she conducted cooking classes at the headquarters of the National Woman's Party, which enjoyed a considerable vogue. "If you want to make a mere man happy, feed him well, and if you want to make his wife happy, teach her to feed him well." This was Mme. Hanenfeldt's philosophy, and in putting it into effect she felt that she was doing her bit. So this was a happy period for her.

Now both Mme. Hanenfeldt and her daughter are American citizens and full of gratitude for the Americans who have helped a woman, thrown into the world without any preparation for earning a living, to find herself. Since Miss Hanenfeldt has developed such unusual musical gifts, her mother has been serving as her manager. Mme. Hanenfeldt makes her home in Washington, but of late Miss Hanenfeldt's headquarters have been in New York.

Child Welfare Worker Home From Nanking

Mrs. Dougherty Is Back From Long Sojourn in Orient.

Home from China, where she has been for several months, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty is in New York for a short visit, but presumably will come to Washington before many days are past. And what an interesting tale she will have to tell of the extensive campaign of child welfare work, which she has been conducting in China.

The program was sponsored by the Chinese Child Welfare Association, Inc., and the Chinese Society, both of which have headquarters in New York. Mrs. Dougherty had long experience in child welfare work here to fit her for this important experiment. Headquarters were established in Nanking, center of activity of the new Nationalist government, and in many large centers Mrs. Dougherty staged demonstrations of methods of conserving child health.

Her intention, after getting the program started, was to turn over the work to a group of Chinese educated in the West and imbued with Occidental ideas of sanitation and of the importance of children as hostages to the future; and presumably this is what she has done.

Although Mrs. Dougherty owns two houses in Washington, she will probably go to a hotel on her return, as both are rented. Mr. and Mrs. James R. Lowe make their home in one, a charming little maisonette in R street, and, in the other, just across the street, Maj. Gen. George Barnett is now living.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE first network rebroadcast of a program originating across the Atlantic was accomplished just one year ago today—a symphony concert from London.

Sales of all radio products in January showed a marked improvement over December, H. B. Richmond, of the Radio Manufacturers, reports.

ROSALIE JONES, now the wife of Senator Dill, running things tonight in the Women's International League of Peace broadcast on WRC, recalls the last time we saw her.

It was in the more militant capacity of leading a bunch of suffragettes down F street who had trudged all the way from Albany to participate in the suffrage demonstration which wound up in a riot the day before the Wilson inauguration.

Lincoln's Birthday exercises this year will be broadcast direct from the house where Lincoln died.

THROUGH Richard H. Waldo, alert skipper for McClure's, we learn that Fannie Hurst will make her national radio debut Friday night and will be heard in the Capital over WMAL.

The sale of Station WOC at Davenport, Iowa, for $122,000, and considered cheap at the price, brings to mind that in the old days when the broadcasting art was in a formative stage, it is said Woodward & Lothrop, which then operated a station, fixed a sale price of $612 for its station, including the wave length.

COL. C. T. Davis, "Old Man Donaldson," pioneer radio dramatist, who just died, was a friend here of Albert F. Ferguson. Radio used to be entirely musical until Davis, formerly in the British army, arrived in New York and met Malcolm La Prade. Together they built the first series of stories for the radio. The last work of Davis was presented in Collier's hour over WJZ last Sunday evening.

It would take but a few watts power, instead of thousands of watts now used by a broadcasting station, Gen. George O. Squier declares, to distribute a symphony concert to a whole city by means of the monophone which he would attach to the telephone to bring superprograms into your home.

HEARD from Station KUKU, New York:

"Now, folks, we were to have a few songs by the two vagabond lovers—but one of them is home with a cold, so we will have to be satisfied tonight with one vagabond lover."

Jane Interprets the Mode

A truly smart hat, bag and scarf ensemble! (A Dah-ray design.)

Paris, Jan. 31.

ONCE we thought it was good taste and interesting to put on ruffles and flowers, fluffed and gee-gored. Today we feel differently about such things, but while liking simplicity and severity we avoid plainness.

Spring ensembles and suits, for instance, for all that they must be well tailored and perfect in line, require a lighter touch that typifies spring. And there are very few ways to get it! One of the best ways is by scarfs, hat and bag touches. Not that your scarf, hat and bag should match—heaven forbid such an unimaginative thing! But they can point to one another, if you see what I mean. The newest idea of a hat, scarf and bag ensemble is certainly different from the ideas of a few seasons ago. For instance, the set I illustrated—the hat faced in a printed silk of irregular circles, the bag lined in the printed silk, and the scarf appliqued with the circles cut out of the printed silk and distributed over the material!

Sure, it's tricky, and represents a lot of time and what-not, but the question is why not—since it leads to elegance and chic!

• • • •

Any one can make them, it takes just the ideas—but they do have to be real ideas, which result in something pleasing and smart and slightly different. So, I've thought and thought, and watched and asked, and the result is ten—ten ideas for hat, bag and scarf ensembles, which are absolutely unusual and lovely, and which you can make from the illustrated leaflet. Just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope next week to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

• • • •

There is one other way to add chic and elegance and a touch of youthful freshness to spring ensembles and tailleurs, and that is by lingerie touches. Collars and cuffs, vestees and lovely blouses with handkerchief scarfs and handerchief effects are all smart this season and refreshing.

• • • •

The Couturier.

J. Suzanne Talbot. J. Suzanne Talbot is correct, although in general one just hears Talbot. The J. and the Suzanne are, of course, pronounced just as one would pronounce then in English, and Talbot is pronounced "Tal-bo." The "Tal" is pronounced just as we say "pal," not as we pronounce "tall." And there is no special accent on either syllable.

• • • •

By the way, speaking of all the things we didn't do New Year's Eve, reminds me of that evening cape I told you to make for New Year's Eve, and then to tell you how to make two dresses of it. The plot was quite simple—'twas just that the body of the cape is made with so little cutting that the material is in such condition that you can make a velvet or satin dress, whichever it was—and of the lining you make another dress. Ripping the material, pressing is quite flat, of course, and designing your gowns quite as though you were using new material.

• • • •

Tomorrow's the day, again, when you should look in The Washington Post for the weekly Dare fashion letter.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

Success may be anticipated to visit most undertakings on this date—the influences will engender both energy and initiative. A change of business or residence is probable. Good financially and mentally.

The child born on this February 1 will have good reasoning powers, but will not be efficient in execution. It will have high aims, and will be capable of much self-sacrifice to attain its goal. Love will be the most important and helpful influence in its life.

You are naturally very broad-minded, and you are able to rise above petty annoyapces and disappointments. Both men and women born on February 1 have the ability to manage, and can diplomatically and successfully direct others. Nature has given you the qualifications of a leader, and only when circumstances or fate allows you to play this role you are a success. You detest being under the restraint of others; you lose interest in things unless you can deal with them "on your own."

You are not one-minded over your convictions, and you seldom allow prejudice to blind your vision or to warp your mind, so that you can not see or feel the truth about things. You are very just and honorable in all your dealings, and aim to do right, regardless of any personal sacrifices. You have a great respect toward duty, and you do not shirk its demands.

You love literature and music and are an earnest and interesting conversationalist. It rather irritates you to be thrown socially with those in whom you are not interested, or with those who are not your mental equals. You are pureminded and lovable, affectionate in your home, and always looking for an opportunity to add to the happiness of your loved ones.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIET OF THE INDIANS.

THE American Indian was not unhealthy before the white man handed him a new lot of diseases and a new bundle of habits. It is true that he did not multiply and inhabit the earth, but that was for other reasons. He had a high accident rate and a low birth rate, and he was without thrift.

An editorial in the Medical Record and Journal says that his fair average health may have been due in part to his diet. He lived largely on meats These were cooked enough to kill any worms or bacteria they contained. However, since most of the meats were supplied by wild animals killed in the open, it is not likely that there was much infection or infestation.

He had no milk except mother's milk. Until the Spaniards came Indians had no cows, horses, sheep, or goats, and in consequence he had no milk supply. He had no cane or beet sugar. He did have honey and in some sections he had maple sugar. These were highly prized foods. In summer the more stable Indians gathered wild grapes, plums, crabapples, and berries and preserved these by drying in the sun. Thus he got some fruit sugar Mother's milk was a source of milk sugar for the babies. In spite of these sources the Indian diet was very low in sugars.

It was somewhat richer in other carbohydrates. The more stable Indians had corn and wild rice and some other grains. They raised squashes and some roots and tubers. In hard times they ate a good many barks, roots and tenderer plants. Their only sources of fats were the fats of animals, nuts, grains and seed. They got very little salt except that which was found in the meats. Rights to salt licks was the cause of more than one war.

War parties lived on nothing more than dried meats and dried grain. The Indians regarded well-fed warriors as no account.

The claim that the Indian had a satisfactory diet can not be defended. He had many diarrheal disorders. His babies did not thrive, partly because there was not much in between mother's milk and tree bark. But, on the other hand, the Indian did miss some of the nutritional disorders from which we suffer. The best diet lies somewhere between that of the Indian and that of white men of today.

A CASE FOR ANTITOXIN.

Mrs. D. E. M. writes: About six months ago I was down on my knees chopping shrubbery when I was suddenly seized in one knee with something like rheumatism. I suffered about 36 hours and had to call my physician the second time before I got relief. The knee joint was swollen and had fever in it for several days. Now it doesn't pain me except when I put weight on it, but I am unable to walk without crutches and my limb swells from the knee down.

REPLY.

You give a good description of old-fashioned rheumatism or rheumatic fever. This is the kind of rheumatism that is best suited to the antitoxin treatment.

You should have your heart watched, since this type of rheumatism is reasonably certain to involve the heart to some degree.

WHEN TO DRINK WATER.

A. T. N. writes:

1. Doctors advise patients suffering from constipation to drink plenty of water—from six to eight, or even ten glasses a day. Do they mean plain water, or would coffee, tea, milk, buttermilk, &c., be counted the same as water?

2. When would be appropriate hours of the day to drink the eight to ten glasses?

REPLY.

1. Water taken as coffee, tea, milk and as a component of foods counts as water.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

BROILED STEAK.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Select one of the tender steaks from 1½ to 2 inches thick. Trim the steak of excess fat and wipe it off with a damp cloth. A steak may be broiled by direct heat or it may be panbroiled in a skillet. To broil by direct heat, grease the rounds of a rack, lay the steak on it, and place over live coals, or under an electric grill, or the flame of a gas oven.

If a gas oven is used, have the steak 2 or 3 inches below the flame. Best results are usually obtained by leaving the door open. Sear on one side and then turn, being careful not to pierce the brown crust. When both sides are seared, reduce the heat, and turn the steak occasionally until cooked to the desired stage.

To pan-broil a steak, sear it on both sides in a lightly greased, sizzling hot skillet, then reduce the temperature and cook to the desired stage, turning the meat to insure even cooking. Do not add water and do not cover. From time to time pour off accumulated fat so that the steak will not fry. A thick steak after searing may be successfully finished in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Slip a rack under the steak in the skillet, and the meat will cook evenly without being turned. This is a convenient arrangement, for full attention may then be given to other last-minute preparations for the meal.

Place the steak when done on a hot platter and season with salt, pepper and melted butter. Garnish with parsley and serve at once.

No definite time can be given for cooking a steak because of varying thickness, degree of heat applied, and personal preference. A steak 1½ to 2 inches thick will probably require 20 to 25 minutes to cook medium rare under the flame of a gas oven.

Economist Tells Club to Keep Eye on Federal Reserve Data.

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS UP

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Members of the Bond Club of Washington were advised yesterday by Dr. David Friday, economist, author and director of the National Bureau of Economic Research, to keep his eyes on the Federal Reserve open market policy in the purchase and sale of bonds and acceptances.

Addressing 80 members and guests at the monthly meeting of the club at the Carlton Hotel, Dr. Friday spoke on "Interest Rates and Bond Prices." Tracing the policy of the Federal Reserve Board back to 1920 and with it the curve of bond prices, he said it would be interesting to compare these and that the price index of bonds has moved with Federal Reserve buying of bonds and acceptances. Asserting the reserve open market policy dominates the bond market trend, he declared it by far the most important factor in bond prices, more important than all others.

Says Recession to Be Brief.

In the discussion following his speech, Dr. Friday expressed the opinion that the business recession would be severe but brief as in 1924, showing where January output was higher than in December. Explaining why he thought the slump would be short-lived, he said there was nothing fundamentally wrong with business conditions, reminding that commodity prices had not risen during the business boom and were actually lower in 1927 than in 1920 or 1921.

Lack of any inefficiency in the management of labor in so far as costs of production are concerned or any tightening of the fundamental credit situation as reflected by the reserve ratio were other conditions cited by the speaker in support of his belief.

Christmas savings clubs in 31 Washington banks will break other records this year both in membership and money, President Wilmer J. Waller, of the District of Columbia Bankers' Association, announced yesterday, returns from the six-week campaign for 1930 showing 91,430 club members subscribing $7,772,273.50.

3,729 New Christmas Accounts.

This is an increase of 3,729 accounts over last year when total membership was 87,701, and a gain in the amount subscribed over 1929 of $310,194.50, last year's subscriptions having totaled $7,462,079. Much credit is due Eliot H. Thomson, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman of the association's advertising committee, and his associates for the success of the Christmas savings club campaigns.

Washington bank clearings for January were $118,219,264.83, as contrasted with a total of $129,438,291.31 in January, 1929. The report of the Washington Clearing House Association made public yesterday, showed January clearings ahead of those of December, 1929, which were $116,074,630.10, while December 1928 clearings were $129,981,412.08.

In January, 1928, clearings were $114,408,832.92; in January, 1927, $117,074,963.02, and in January, 1926, $112,853,440.90. Clearings for last year, however, were greater than any other.

HUGE RAIL TURNOVER AIDS STOCKS' CLIMB

New 1930 High Levels Set in Utility, Carrier and Industrial Groups.

GAINS IN COMMODITIES

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—One of the most comprehensive buying movements since the postpanic rally was checked last December took place in today's stock market, with total sales and the railroad, industrial and public utility indices all setting new high records for the year. While week-end profit-taking sales were rather heavy, they were easily absorbed, net gains in the active issues ranging from 1 to 11 points.

Meanwhile, the commodity markets, which had encountered a storm of liquidation all week, steadied perceptibly but not until after an opening break of 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures had carried them to new low levels for the season. Wheat, corn and cotton all closed with small net gains.

The call money renewal rate was fixed at 4 per cent, the lowest since January, 1928, but it was marked up to 4½ per cent again in the afternoon when the heavy demand for funds in connection with month-end payments brought about a temporary scarcity in the supply. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady, but bankers' acceptances were reduced ⅛ of 1 per cent. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank made no change in its 4½ per cent rediscount rate.

Dun's and Bradstreet's Reviews.

Dun's and Bradstreet's weekly reviews continued to find irregularities in the general business situation, but both emphasized the progress that has been made since the middle of December. Dun's states that "conditions at the month-end disclose the expected lack of uniformity and also various unsatisfactory features, yet gains in activity and in sentiment have become more distinct." Bradstreet's points out that "trade and industry, partaking of the irregularity of weather in January, are still to be classed as 'spotty,'" but explains that "taking the month as a whole, industry has shown definite expansion, and there is no question but what employment has likewise expanded from the low levels of December while, on the other hand, operations are not so active nor is buying so well advanced as a year ago."

Sears Roebuck, making public its first sales report under the 13-month calendar adopted by the company, made a favorable comparison with last year. The annual dividends on Burroughs Adding Machine was raised from 80 cents to $1, but Studebaker omitted the usual quarterly stock dividend of 1 per cent declared at this time.

Postponement of the Federal Trade Commission hearings on the financial operations of public utilities probably stimulated the demand for those issues. American & Foreign Power, Brooklyn Union Gas, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Laclede Gas and Stone & Webster all closed 3 to 5 points higher, heavy covering by short interests stimulating the advance.

R. H. Macy Climbs 10¾ Points.

Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were turned over in large volume, but there appeared to be plenty of stock for sale on the way up, and the net gains were held to fractions. R. H. Macy ran up 10¾ points and Spiegel May Stern 4¾.

New York & Harlem gave one of its periodic pyrotechnic demonstrations, soaring 47 points to 265. American Machine & Foundry ran up 11 points to 228. National Biscuit (old stock), Westinghouse Electric, Worthington Pump, Eastman Kodak, Dupont, Allied Chemical and Columbia Carbon showed net gains of 4 to nearly 8 points. Simmons ran into further selling on the announcement of new financing.

The foreign exchange market was quiet, with leading rates easier. Sterling Cables were quoted a shade lower around $4.85½, and Spanish pesetas dropped nearly 10 points, to 13.14 cents.

TECH FIVE CONQUERS WESTERN, TAKES LEAD IN SERIES; ENTRIES IN POST'S A. A. U. COURT TOURNEY SET RECORD

28 UNLIMITED TEAMS REGISTER TO PLAY IN CHAMPIONSHIP EVENT

Entry List to Exceed Number Competing Last Season.

145-Pound Quintets Also Enter Tourney Starting Mar. 10.

UNLIMITED class teams set a new record for A. A. U. competition here when 28 basket ball clubs registered players for the District A. A. U. championship tournament to be played here starting March 10. The fact that registration this year was required a month earlier than in other seasons, the teams flocked to enter the tournament, which will be sponsored by The Washington Post.

Some of the suburban teams in the unlimited class are: Remsens, Takoma Firemen, Silver Spring Giants, Dixie Pigs, Company F, Hyattsville; Brentwood Hawks, McLean A. C., Fort Washington, Fort Humphreys and Quantico Marines.

Ten 145-pound fives, all District teams, registered their players in their class.

True to the tradition of amateur sports, the great majority of applicants for registration began to storm the registration committee yesterday afternoon and early last night. In order to take care of the late influx of applicants, William E. Russell, chairman, and members of the registration committee took up headquarters in the sports department of The Post yesterday, prepared to remain on the scene until midnight, when the opportunity to register for tournament play will be closed to 145-pound and unlimited players.

Only those players of the two heavier classes who made application for registration prior to midnight will be eligible to play in the tournament. Practically every prominent player in the District and vicinity, eligible for amateur competition, is included among the hundreds who have filed registration applications.

Rival managers were as busy as the registration officials, scouting about for their best talent and attempting to fill gaps left by late decisions of players to compete with another team. As has been the custom in previous seasons, many of the stars who perform regularly with several teams, waited until the eleventh hour to declare their affiliations for the championship games, with the result that disappointed managers were busy seeking capable substitutes.

Charles A. Carrico, manager of the Montrose Athletic Club Five, announced last night that after his team meets the Laurel Team tomorrow, it will cancel all games scheduled after that date. Practically the same team which represented Montrose last year will be back in line, including the Thompson brothers, of Western High fame.

Primo Carnera K. O.'s Rioux in 47 Seconds

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, knocked out, Elzear Rioux in the first round of their scheduled ten-round fight in the Chicago Stadium tonight, flooring him five times. The match was witnessed by a crowd in excess of 18,000.

The French-Canadian never landed a blow. The Venetian giant spilled him four times with rights to the head, finally knocking him flat on his face with a right to the chin. Carnera weighed 269, and scaling 205¾. The fight lasted only 47 seconds.

Dixie Rowing Body In Meeting Tonight

Plans for spring and summer regattas in Southern waters will be outlined at the semiannual meeting of the Southern Rowing Association at 8 o'clock tonight in the board room of the Potomac Boat Club. Possible rowing events in the cherry blossom carnival, to be held here this spring, also will be discussed.

Representatives of the Old Dominion oBat Club, Arundel Boat Club and the Virginia Boat Club will be present at the meeting. Paul Bergh and Capt. Ernie Miller will represent the Potomas Boat Club.

Singer Easy Winner Over Stan Loayza

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Clever young Al Singer, the Bronx beauty, punched a few more holes in Stanislauz Loayza, tough old war horse of the lightweight division, in a sensational free-for-all battle that drew 18,000 of the faithful to the battle pit tonight.

The sparkling Jewish lad, nailed as another Benny Leonard and a coming champion, won th eten-round decision with ease. He belted the rugged Loayza freely, knocked him down for a count of nine in the third round, and was himself in danger only once.

After absorbing enough punishment to stow away most of the current lightweights, Loayza flashed a dogged rally in the tenth round, but the sting had been drawn from most of the South American's punches. Singer weighed 134½, Loayza, 136½.

G. W. DEFEATS VIRGINIANS, 27 TO 24

Randolph-Macon Five Bows to Last-Half Spurt of Colonials.

WHEN close games are fought between George Washington University and Randolph-Macon, George Washington wins them.

That such seems to be the case, was proven last night when the Colonials repeated their last-minute victory of a few weeks back over the Virginians, by again nosing out the fast-stepping Black and Gold five, this time to the tune of 27 to 24, in the G. W. Gymnasium.

Until the last three minutes of play last night, it looked as if the visitors were ready to claim revenge on Coach Joe Mitchell's warriors. Getting off to a fast start, Randolph-Macon ran up a 13-4 lead in the first ten minutes of play, and although the Colonials put on a scoring spurt of their own before the half-time whistle blew, the Virginians were ahead, 16-13, as the rivals left the floor for the intermission period.

Foul Goals Aid in Tying Score.

However, aided by two field goals of Jeweller and five foul tosses, the home team succeeded in knotting the count at 24-all. At the culmination of this drive, Castell sent G. W. anead with another foul toss as the timekeeper's watch showed two minutes left to play. With the seconds rapidly ticking off, and Randolph-Macon desperately striving to score, Castell set Colonial supporters at ease by looping in a snowbird or a beautiful pass under the basket from Hoover. In the remaining 20 seconds, Randolph-Macon was unable to score.

The visitors were seriously handicapped late in the game when King, their stellar forward, was forced from the game as result of his fourth personal foul. Although outscored from the floor, 10 to 8, George Washington cashed in on eleven out of its sixteen chances. Jeweller led the home offense with three shots of this type, besides scoring four times from the floor.

V. P. I. LOSES GUSTAFSON, GRID COACH

Mentor Released So He Can Accept Offer at Pitt.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 31.—At a meeting of the athletic council tonight, Andrew F. Gustafson, head foothall coach at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was released at his own request from his contract for the 1930 season so that he might accept a more desirable position at the University of Pittsburgh.

The news broke with startling suddenness over the V. P. I. campus tonight and drew quite a flurry of comment. Gustafson was tendered a one-year contract at the close of the 1929 season and expected to return for his fifth season as head coach of the Gobblers, but today requested that he be released from the contract as the result of an offer of the position as head back field coach at his alma mater.

Pitt Offers Big Increase In Salary.

The offer at Pitt is understood to be for a salary far in advance of the sum he was to receive at V. P. I. and is to run for three years.

Gustafson was present at the meeting and expressed regret at leaving V. P. I., but stated that the contract offered him for the three years at Pitt was such that he could not well afford to turn it down.

BIG TEN WILL REINSTATE IOWA U.

Meeting Today Is to End Humiliation of Hawkeyes.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The University of Iowa, suspended from the Western Conference on charges of subsidizing and proselyting its athletes, will be voted back into the Big Ten at a meeting of the faculty committee on athletics here tomorrow. Reinstatement is expected to become effective March 1.

This action, it was authoritatively learned today, will be taken to save the Hawkeye institution from further humiliation, as it had been reported that the North Central Association of Colleges intended to investigate conditions at Iowa at its meeting March 7.

The general sentiment of the other nine institutions in the Western Conference, apparently, is that Iowa has been sufficiently punished for its infraction of rules governing athletics. Furthermore, the action of the Hawkeye athletic authorities in the recent housecleaning, in which 29 athletes were declared ineligible for further competition, has recated favorably with members of the faculty comittee.

Too Late to Schedule Big Ten Foes.

That Iowa has assurance of receiving a clean bill was indicated by the action of the university in postponing the annual national Iowa Night, usually held on February 25, Founders Day, until March 10.

The reinstatement, however, does not open the way for the Hawkeyes to compete with other Big Ten teams in football, baseball or basket ball this year. This is because the schedules in the major sports already have been drawn up for the 1930 season, leaving the Hawkeyes to shift for themselves.

It is possible, however, that the Iowans may compete in the Big Ten indoor and outdoor track and field championships.

Sharkey Works in Public, Knocking Grosso to Ropes

By NED BROWN.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jack Sharkey sparred in public today for the first time since he began preparing for his fight with Phil Scott, now only four weeks off. His showing was impressive, for while he boxed only one round with Johnny Grosso, he showed plenty of speed and a corking right-hand wallop. In fact, when he got warmed to his work which was not until the round almost had reached a conclusion, he landed this right hook to Grosso's jaw and sent him reeling into the ropes. It would have been a knockdown, but the ropes prevented Grosso from falling to the floor.

Even though there were moving-picture cameras of the job, recording the proceedings with sound effects, the near knockdown had all the earmarks of the genuine article. In fact, it couldn't very well have been anything else, for it immediately occasioned a dispute among the visiting experts who were on hand to chronicle any untoward or important development that might transpire during the workout.

Some declared it was a right hook to the jaw. Others averred it was a right to the heart. In this dilemma Grosso was appealed to and he declared it was "hard wallop on the forehead." If that was the case all I have to say is that Grosso must be a lowbrow for the punch landed squarely where the ordinary mortal wears his chin.

Grosso put up a good hard fight with Sharkey, and he made the American heavyweight champion step around briskly. This Sharkey did, and he exhibited excellent footwork in doing so. Sharkey also showed a good left jab to the face, and evaded Grosso's blows cleverly. He ducked, side-stepped and slipped punches and countered well, although at the start he was a little wild in his timing and inaccurate in his shooting.

Sharkey looked very good in his work on both the big and the little punching bags, and he appeared to be in great physical condition.

Sharkey had one of his "good" days. He was in an amiable mod.

Cantillon, 52 Seasons in Game, Dies

Former Manager of Nats Loses Battle With Paralysis.

Death of Canny Veteran Recalls Shutout Feats of Johnson.

HICKMAN, Ky., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—"Pongo Joe" Cantillon, "grand old man of baseball," died at his home here today.

High on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River that he loved, "Pongo Joe" for days had been waging a valiant fight against paralysis—a fight full of the spirit and the courage he had displayed on the diamond for 52 years.

When the Great Umpire called the final strike today, Joe's last thoughts in his last moments of consciouaness were for his friends, as they had been through much of his 69 years of life.

"Don't worry," he would say. "Don't call my brother. I will be all right."

Cantillon's passing removed one of the most picturesque figures in the baseball world. Since he started his career as bat boy for the Janesville (Wis.) Club, in 1888, "Pongo Joe" had served as manager, umpire, player and scout in a dozen leagues, had discovered some of the outstanding players of the game and was known from coast to coast as one of the "canniest heads" the game ever had produced.

Veteran Had Contact With Hundreds.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—There are baseball players, past and present, all over the United States who will shed a tear for Joe Cantillon. In his years as a manager in the major and minor leagues, the veteran "Pongo Joe" came in contact with hundreds of players, and they left him with a greater knowledge than they had before they knew him.

Baseball wise to a degree that was almost uncanny, Cantillon kept a "guess ahead" in his active baseball days and later as supervisor of umpires of the American Association he was reported "hard to fool."

Last summer, Cantillon went to Tampa, Fla., to rest for a few weeks and talk baseball with his old cronies. As soon as he reached his hotel his former players began to gather about him, Walter Johnson, Clyde Milan, Joe Engel, Gabby Street and others.

Shut Out Yankees 3 Straight Days.

"Remember the time you pitched three games in a row and shut out New York in every one," Cantillon asked Johnson. The Washington manager of today told the Washington manager of twenty years ago that he recalled the incident perfectly.

"Tell the young fellows about it," suggested Milan.

"Walter pitched out of turn the first game of the series in New York because I had let his roommate go home on condition that he be back in time to pitch the opener. Walter said he'd pitch in his place and he shut 'em out. The next day was his regular turn and he shut 'em out again. There was a Sunday in between so he was all rested up Monday and said he would like to pitch again. I said 'O. K.' and he shut 'em out for the third time.

"When we went out for the fourth game, Kid Elberfeld, shortstop for the Highlanders, came over to our bench. 'Who you going to pitch today, Joe?' asked the Kid.

"'I don't know,' I said, 'I haven't talked to Walter, he hasn't come out yet.'

"'Listen,' said Elberfeld, 'If that Idaho hurricane pitches again, none of us will have a job.'"

Gabby Street Feels Manager's Wit.

And there was the time Gabby Street was catching Tom Hughes in a game in Detroit and with the game well in hand, signaled for a fast ball against a batsman who, said Joe, "couldn't hit a curve with a paddle." A fatal base-hit resulted.

"I said to Street, 'you're through. I am going to send you home. Get a ticket from Jerry (the secretary). Then the players laughed at Gabby, so I said, 'wait, don't get your ticket tonight. Wait until tomorrow, by that time I'll have seven or eight more to send home and we can get a party ticket.'"

Players recalled an experience in St. Louis when Washington was defeated, 1 to 0, for the third time in three days. Cantillon took a seat beside the driver of the bus which was to take the players back to their hotel and said, "Put up the curtains." "But, Mr. Cantillon," protested the driver, "the sun is shining. There is no sign of rain."

"Put up the curtains," repeated Joe, "and drive this load of baseball garbage straight into the middle of the Mississippi River."

Lightning Elicits Another Jibe.

On another occasion rain ended a game with Washington trailing when the team had thrown away several chances to forge ahead before the downpour. As the bus waited for a let-up in the rain, lightning killed one of the horses.

"The ways of Providence are past understanding," said the manager. "Here lightning kills a poor dumb brute of a horse and lets ball players like you live."

Joe Engel, now president of the Chattanooga Club, was once the object of Cantillon's sarcasm. Engel was pitching for Minneapolis and was very wild. He walked seven or eight batsmen and Cantillon took him out. "I'll get control yet, Joe," said Engel. "You will," Cantillon agreed, "but you'll get it in the Virginia League."

EAGLES TRIM SAINTS.

The Anacostia Eagles Five last night defeated the St. Martin's 145-pounders, 28 to 14. Bob Warren set the pace with 12 points.

Red and White, Minus 3 Regulars Near End, Overtaken.

Closing Rally Against Business Also Wins for Eastern.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

FLASHING unerring scoring eyes and taking advantage of a demoralized Western Team weakened by the loss of three regulars, Tech High's basket ball warriors overcame an 11-point lead held by the Red and White at the start of the fourth quarter yesterday oy launching a sensational scoring rally which brought a 34-to-30 victory and sent the Manual Trainers to the front in the interhigh league race.

Weakened by the loss of Paul Chatlen early in the fray, Western was further penalized at the start of the final period when Bob Freeman, stellar center, was banned from play as the result of his fourth personal foul, but, fighting gamely, managed to hold the Maroon and Gray at bay for the next five minutes. However, when Everett Buscher was forced from action with two and a half minutes still left to play, the Red and White was about at the end of its rope.

Holding but a single point lead at this moment, Western saw its advantage snatched away when Capt. MacCartee tossed in a foul try to tie the score at 30-30, and with less than a minute to play, Everett Russell sank a short pot shot to give Tech the lead. And when MacCartee again registered with a beautiful back-hand shot, the verdict was sewed up. With three substitutes in the game, Western was powerless to stop the determined Maroon and Gray attack.

Eastern Goes Into Second Place.

Almost as an anticlimax, the Eastern-Business nightcap was nevertheless quite a thrill in itself, the Lincoln Parkers going into second place in the league standings by taking a 45-41 victory from the Business courtmen.

It was an uphill battle all the way that Tech fought to capture the lead of the court race, Western surprising with a display of sharpshooting which enabled it to walk off the floor with a 15-9 advantage at intermission. Alton Rabbit, a thorn in the side of the Techites throughout, exhibited an especially eagle eye for the loop potting no less than three long tosses in for the first twenty minutes of play. Rabbit making good on these attempts and Bob Freeman following up two of the unsuccessful tries at the basket, Western was content to stay outside of Tech's zone defense for th first twenty minutes of play.

At the start of the second half Tech at once abandoned its zone, adopting the man-to-man defense, which, however, brought no immediate results. Milton Chatlen, brother of the Paul that had been banned, sent four fouls straight through the net for needed points early in the second half, which enabled Western to maintain its stout margin to the end of the period.

But with Freeman sent to the sidelines by Referee Caruso on his fourth personal foul right after the start of the final period, Tech opened up with as brilliant and as determined an attack as has yet been seen in the series, culminating only after the game was safely packed away beyond the hopes of Western and its followers.

Tech Overcomes 11-Point Western Lead.

After Western had reached a total of 30, to give it an 11-point lead, the Maroon and Gray started on its drive, and while holding their foes scoreless for the remainder of the fray, went on to pile up the winning markers. With MacCartee leading the way with two snowbirds and a foul, Tech climbed to within 4 points of Western, which took time out with 2¼ minutes to play. At the resumption of play, Tech immediately resumed its spurt, Russell starting the drive with a long shot from the side.

After Lassisse had tossed in a foul to make the score 30-29, MacCartee

Max Carey Rejoins Pirates as Coach

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Max Carey, former outfielder of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club, today signed a contract to coach the Pirates. He was released by the Pirates in 1926 and was claimed by Brooklyn by the waiver route. He played with Brooklyn until the close of last season.

Fighter Is Exonerated In Fatal Detroit Bout

Detroit, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A coroner's jury today exonerated Eddie Koppy, Detroit lightweight boxer, for striking the blow which resulted in the death of Mickey Darmon in a bout at Olympia a week ago. Promoters and officials of the match also were found blameless.

The inquest was held before Dr. James E. Burgess, county coroner. Witnesses included Sam Hennessy, the referee; Charles Moore, Koppy's manager; Edward Casey, Darmon's manager; Henry Komrofsky, of the State Boxing Commission; James E. (Bingo) Brown chairman of the boxing commission, and William Monteith, the promoter.

Koppy testified that he struck Darmon a right to the jaw just after they had broken out of a clinch. The witnesses agreed it was not a grudge match but a strictly commerical affair.

S. California Raises Filipino Boxing Ban

Los Angeles, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Frank Moran, boxing inspector, here today notified promoters of Southern California that they may continue to use Filipino boxers in their fight programs.

The announcement followed on the heels of a recent order from William Hanlon, chairman of the State Athletic Commission at Sacramento, ordering the removal of Filipinos from fight cards as a result of race troubles in the northern part of the State.

Moran said he had received orders from Commissioner James Woods to reverse Hanlon's action in southern California following a conference between Woods and Commissioner Charles Traung in San Francisco yesterday. He said Woods had also conferred with Gov. Young on the matter.

Paul Bunyan Will Meet Rival

Winter Track Star to Face Dowagiac for First Time.

Donnay and Leucite Carry Rancocas Stable Colors.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—With some of the best horses on the turf entered, the $10,000 New Orleans Handicap will be run tomorrow at the Fair Grounds race track under promised clear skies and fast track conditions.

Although the purse was cut from $50,000 to $10,000 the handicap attracted a strong field with interest heightened by the expected duel between L. M. Severson's Paul Bunyan and the Wild Rose Stable's Dowagiac. Paul Bunyan has been showing his heels to the best the New Orleans tracks had to offer this winter and has beaten about every house running tomorrow except Dowagiac, winner of the Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park July 4.

The three D's Stock Farm also has been gunning for this purse and has entered a trio of speeders in Panchio, Calf Roper and Line Rider.

The Rancocas Stable has entered Donnay and Leucite and George Collins has put in Old Slip and Patricia Marian, the strong mare that gave Paul Bunyan his only beating of the season after he had beaten her in a previous stake race.

Twenty-seven have been entered but at least a third of them proably will be scratched before the start of the race.

Gallaudet Five Bows To Juniata, 27 to 23

Special to The Washington Post.

Huntingdon, Pa., Jan. 31.—Although they got away to a late start, the Juniata Cage Team managed to score a 27 to 23 win over the visiting Gallaudet Team here tonight. Andrews opened the game for the Indians with a count from the charity stripe, but the Gallaudet Five began an offensive which resulted in a total of seven points before the Juniata Team pulled itself together and stopped the assault on their basket. They led, 13-to-12, at the half and were always in front thereafter.

Cosgrove took scoring honors for Gallaudet with 11 points, while Ringle followed him with eight.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FARR, $2.90, $2.60, $2.30; SALISBURY, $4.40, $2.50; JIMMIE L., $2.60.

FARR, breaking well, lost ground entering the stretch, then responded well to a hustling ride and, overhauling SALISBURY inside the final sixteenth, outfinished the latter in a mild drive. SALISBURY, away fast, saved ground turning into the stretch and dominated the running to the final stages, where he weakened. JIMMIE L., a forward factor all the way, finished stoutly. BROAD A. was forced wide entering the stretch. SPARROW HAWK tired.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS RAMSEY, $7.80, $4.30, $2.90; PORTSUR, $5.30, $3.80; THOMAS SETH, $2.80.

MISS RAMSEY, racing forwardly from the break, responded to hard riding in the stretch and in a hand drive, just managed to outfinish PORTSUR. The latter displayed good speed from the break and, after disposing of MILANO, fought it out in stubborn fashion with the winner. THOMAS SETH, overcoming early interference, finished stoutly. JOHN ROBERT raced well. PAQUETTE closed ground from a poor beginning. MILANO quit badly after showing speed for three-eighths.

BURNT BROWN, reserved close up to the stretch, responded well when called upon and, taking command inside of final furlong, was drawing clear at the end. AIMEE GOLDSMITH displayed the most speed in pacemaking and, after dropping back as if beaten, came again to hold the place safe. MARY ELOISE, slightly outpaced early, moved stoutly on the outside entering the stretch, but hung badly in final drive. SOUTHLAND PRINCE tired after looming up promisingly entering the stretch. AL ESPINOSA, SHUTE TIE IN TEXAS

Pair Break Par With 68's; Horton Smith Turns in 72.

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Densmore Shute, young Columbus, Ohio, professional, and Al Espinosa, Chicago, a veteran golf pro, blazed a par-breaking trail over this deceitful municipal course today to lead a field of almost 150 golfers in the opening round of the ninth annual Texas open golf tournament. Each shot the par 71 layout in 68 strokes to gain a leg on the $1,500 first prize.

Starting early and neglected by the gallery, Shute turned in a remarkable round. His card showed fifteen pars and three birdies. Espinosa was not so steady. He burned up the first nine with a 32, 4 under par, but went 1 over perfect figures on the way back.

While this pair was cracking par wide open, dozens of other starters found the going tough. Among those who threw in the sponge was George Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., stylist, a former Texas open champion. He had a ragged 38 going out and finally gave it up after he had smacked two out of bounds and taken an eight on the par four twelfth. Other equally illustrious stars found par almost as elusive.

Forrester Makes Hole-in-One.

A hole-in-one enlivened the day's festivities. Jack Forrester, New Jersey professional champion, plunked his tee shot in on the 190-yard, tenth to round out a 73 score.

Two strokes behind the leaders were two young Elmsford, N. Y., par shooters, Tony Manero and Mike Turnesa, each with a 70.

One stroke further back, but still well in the running, were Johnnie Golden, Paterson, N. J.; O. P. Hart, Wheeling, W. Va., and Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, each with a standard 71.

Horton Smith, the favorite of the gallery, appeared on the verge of passing out of the picture early when he had a wobbly 38 on the first nine, but he rallied to produce a 34 coming in. At that, luck was in his corner. On one hole he sliced deep into the woods, but the ball cracked a spectator in the neck and bounced back onto the fairway.

Central Swimmers Win in Baltimore

Central High swimmers yesterday defeated the "fish" from the Baltimore City College, 40 to 35, repeating a dose which they administered to the visitors in Baltimore last month.

Max Rote and Ed Hickey were high scorers for Central, each rolling up a 16-point total. Bieren, of Baltimore, followed closely with 15.

200-yard relay—Won by Central (Julihn, Hickey, Leverton and Rote). Time, 1:45 4-5.

100-yard breast stroke—Won by Mayhew (C.); second, Thomas (C.); third, Cowman (B. C.). Time, 1:22 3-5.

50-yard swim—Won by Campbell (B. C.); second, tied, Leverton (C.) and Pridgeon (B. C.). Time, 0:27 1-5.

VA. IN TRACK, MAT MEETS TONIGHT

Runners Hosts to W. & L.; Grapplers to Visit Indians.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 31. Virginia has a heavy sports program ahead for the next ten days. Varsity and freshman teams in boxing, basket ball, track and wrestling will be seen in action.

Tomorrow's activities include a double-header wrestling meet with the matment from William and Mary College in the afternoon in Williamsburg and a track meet with the varsity and freshman teams of Washington and Lee at night in Memorial Gymnasium.

Boxers will not be busy until Monday night. The varsity leather-pushers face the University of Florida Team after the first-year scrappers have staged a contest with the ringmen from Augusta Military Academy. The boxers also have a double-header engagement with the University of North Carolina here on February 8. The Tarheels hold the Southern Conference championship and have not met defeat so far this season.

First-year basket ballers do not play again until next Tuesday, when they have an afternoon game on the home floor with Fork Union Military Academy, one of the strongest prep school quints in the State.

Swimming Teams Showing Improvement.

The varsity and freshman swimming teams are showing much improvement under the coaching of Gordon P. Peyton, former captain of the Baltimore City College Swimming Team. Peyton, on the Virginia squad for four seasons, is a member of the Central Swimming Club, and is joint holder of several world's back-stroke relay records.

Since its return from a Northern trip, the varsity team has been considerably changed. Capt. Brooke Maury, considered by Coach Peyton as the leading college swimmer in the South, will not compete again in the 440-yard race, but will take part in the back stroke and 100-yard dash.

The relay team is developing rapidly and should soon break the record for the Virginia pool. Lampton, the 50-yard man, is consistently cracking 25 seconds flat in his event. He will anchor the relay, with Maury as lead-off man.

Team's Greatest Weakness Is In Diving Events.

The other two men are to be picked from Penick, Chenery, Gwathmey and Clark. Johns and Gresham are handling the breast stroke. The team's greatest weakness at present is in the diving.

Promising material is found in the freshman squad. Sayer and Andrews are real finds in the 220 and should make good varsity material. Oliver looks good in the dive and back stroke.

Byrnes Signs for 1930 With Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 31.—John J. Byrnes signed a contract today to play first base with the Cumberland Team of the Middle Atlantic League this season. Byrnes, manager of the team the last two seasons, when he played at the initial sack, was declared a free agent at the close of the last season. He has been with Cumberland since 1922 and last year batted .331 in more than 100 games to lead the local club.

Contracts have been sent ten reserve players from last year. They are Siegel and Artigiani, catchers; Rase, Corrigan and Smittle, pitchers; Nork, Black and Conti, infielders, and Thomas and Durning, outfielders.

Don Thomas, flashy center fielder of the Colts last season, may not return. He asks to be placed on the voluntary retired list. He has been working at the Altoona shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad and wants to play ball with the shop's team this summer. He is the cog about which it has been hoped to build the local outfield.

Joe Phillips, recently appointed manager of the team, is now at Harrisburg, Pa., and will report to President Nelson W. Russler here in a few days. He advises that he is lining up several fine rookies for the team.

Virginia Poly Frosh Trounce Virginia High

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 31.—With Hall and Bosley, two fast forwards, leading the attack, Virginia Polytechnic Institute freshmen scored almost at will here tonight to overwhelm the Virginia High School Five, of Bristol, 44 to 9. The freshmen took the lead two minutes after the opening whistle and were never again threatened.

Stellar guarding by Wolfe and Palmer, Poly guards, forced the visitors to long-range tactics and held them scoreless in the second and third quarters. Hall and Bosley were high scorers with six field goals each.

EASTERN AND TECH FIVES WIN THRILLERS

followed with his game-tying toss, and Russell sent his team to the van for the first time since the first minute of the game. Holding a 32-30 lead, MacCartee then sewed up the verdict with his fancy toss.

Had it not been for the forerunner of the double bill, the Eastern-Business game would probably go down in the books as one of the most thrilling games of the season. After Eastern had established a 12-to-6 lead at the end of the first quarter, Business started a drive which sent it to a 21-to-20 lead at half time, with Chase, Newman and Lucas doing the bulk of the scoring.

Coming back just as strong after the rest period, Business appeared to be on its way to a victory, piling up seven points before the Lincoln Parkers could score. After that, however, Eastern began to match its foe point for point, but try as it could was unable to knot the count until after the end of the game.

Lieb's Double-Decker Knots Score.

Then with the score 39-37, Lieb potted one from the side to tie the score. Capt. Newman then gave Business the lead once more on a shot from the tap, but Ryan immediately tied things up again with a short pot.

A beautiful one-hand shot by Dallas Shirely then sent the Lincoln Parkers to the front and when Barney Kane came through with his only goal of the game, Eastern boasted a 4-point lead which it managed to hold until the whistle blew, some 45 seconds later.

Joe Robey's seven field goals went a long way toward establishing Eastern supremacy, while Dallas Shirely came through with double-deckers at needed times.

Y EAGLES CLAIM FORFEIT.

Y. M. C. A. Eagles claimed a forfeit from the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Five in the Y Boys' Church League last night.

W. & L. FIVE DUE HERE MONDAY

Fast-Traveling Generals to Be Guests of Marylanders.

LEXINGTON, Va., Jan. 31.—With all five of his probable starters ready for action, Dick Smith will have his Washington and Lee basket ball hopefuls in Huntington, W. Va., tomorrow to meet Francis Stadsvold's Mountaineers. Sunday the Generals will take the train for Washington, and are carded to battle the fast traveling Maryland quintet at College Park Monday.

Sam Barasch, considered a starting forward as a result of his showings in early season games, is primed for the games after having spent all but two minutes of the Virginia setto last week on the bench because of a twisted ankle sustained in warming up just prior to that fracas. His running mate, Harris Cox, second high point man in Virginia circles last year, is ready to go, as is Gene Martin, sophomore, who played throughout almost the entire Virginia game, and who has seen service in nearly every game this year.

Leigh Williams, described by several coaches whose teams have met the Generals this year as the best center in the South, and as good as any in the East, is a certainty at the pivot post for both the West Virginia and the Maryland games, and, unless removed from the game for real cause, is unlikely to give Charlie Fulton, his sophomore understudy, a chance to see action.

In Capt. Ernie Wood, the Generals have the equal of any guard and floor man in the South Atlantic area, and his work in every game has been outstanding. Wood is the basis of most of the Blue and White attack formations, and, when forced to take the ball to within scoring distance single-handed, is seldom intercepted because of his peculiar style and rapidity of driboling. His helpmate back-court, Red Hanna, is an accurate passer, and, standing over 6 feet, is invaluable as a guard under his opponents' basket. Harry Burke, first replacement guard, while not as fast as the two starters is steady under fire, and is a dead shot for the basket when necessity demands firing from beyond the foul lines.

Virginia U. Swimmers Annex Two Meets

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 31.—Virginia's varsity and freshmen swimming teams defeated the natators from William and Mary College here this afternoon.

The Cavalier regulars captured five first places to win by a score of 43 to 23 while the Virginia first-year team had a 9-point margin over the Indian freshmen, 37 to 28.

Capt. Phillips, of William and Mary, annexed first place in the 50 and 100 yard dashes in the varsity meet, barely nosing out Maury, in the latter race, after the Virginia captain had made a very poor start. The time equaled the Virginia pool record.

Fishburne was awarded first place in the dives over the Indian star Leach, and Chenery, of Virginia, registered an easy victory in the 440-yard event.

The star of the freshmen meet was Casey, New England amateur champion, who gave a superb exhibition of fancy diving and captured first place in the 50-yard breast stroke.

Andrews and Sayers were the mainstays of the Cavalier first year teams.

Va. Loses Overtime Game to N. C. Staters

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 31.—Virginia's quintet put up its best game of the season tonight, but lost to North Carolina State in an extra five-minute period, the final score standing 38 to 31.

The Wolfpack, winner of the Southern Conference championship last year, started off with a rush and soon had a 5-point margin. Suddenly the Cavaliers began to solve the passing of the visitors, and then launched a drive of their own. Quick shots by Harrison and Jones gave Virginia a 3-point lead as the first half ended.

The Cavaliers increased their lead at the start of the second period at one time being 8 points in front, but this rally was checked when Capt. Johnson caged a spectacular goal from near midfloor. Gradually the Carolinians began to creep up, and, with only 20 seconds to play, a foul called on Bryant gave the Wolfpack a chance to knot the count at 29-all.

Field goals by Brown, Gammon and Johnson and a shot from the charity mark by Brown proved sufficient to win for State in the extra period, as the best Virginia could do was to score a single point.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 31.—The Episcopal High School basketers will swing into action tomorrow afternoon, when they tackle the Virginia Episcopal School, of Lynchburg, Va. The game will be played in the Episcopal High gym at 3:30 o'clock. This is the first big game the Episcopalians have played this year in deciding the State championship and Coach Flemming is more than anxious to win.

After dropping a hard-fought game to the Central High School of Washington, they will strive to get back in the win column. Coach Flemming will more than likely start the following: McDonald and Cleveland, in forwards; Hancock in center; Train and Orrick in guards. A large number of Alexandria fans are expected to see the game.

Jimmy Luckett was elected captain of the Alexandria High School football team for the 1930 season last night at the annual banquet given the team. The affair was given by the School Pep Club. Henry Moncure, principal of the high school, was toastmaster and about 100 boys and girls attended the affair. After serving the supper talks were given by Superintendent R. C. Bowton and Athletic Director Reynolds on the sports in the local high school.

Luckett has been one of the mainstays on the Big Red football team for the past three years. He has been selected on the all-State team for the past two seasons and his playing has kept the Alexandria boys in the race for the district honors. He received eight votes, while Hugh Travers was given six votes.

Those receiving letters for the past season were as follows: Peyton, Henderson, Jackson, Carr, Duncan, Agner, Williams, Travers, Jones, Jennier, Capt.-elect Luckett, Hancock, Mudd, Haywood and Stump.

Tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock at the Armory Hall, the George Mason High School five will play the Jefferson High School, of Falls Church, Va. The game follows a preliminary one between the girls teams of the two schools.

BOND PRICES PROVE STEADY IN FAIR DAY

Absorption of $80,000,000 in New Financing Gives Little Trouble.

MONEY AT 4½ PER CENT

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Listed bonds showed encouraging resistance in the face of a large volume of new issues today, compared with the market's heaviness on occasions of some of the recent financing, the course of trading was generally steady, although closing prices represented an irregular mixture of small gains and losses in bonds of the best grade.

The $80,000,000 in new flotations was mostly of the utility description. International Telephone's $50,000,000 loan in 25-year debenture 5s was oversubscribed, and the obligations, admitted to dealings on a when-issued basis, advanced an eighth above the offering price of 96½. With this sale out of the way, the stock improved, and therefore the convertible 4½s were able to move up, closing 2⅝ higher. The outstanding debenture 4½s gained about half a point.

Call money showed a sudden reversal of form, renewing at 4 per cent for the first time since January 27, 1928, and then going to 4½ as the month-end demand for funds quickened. Time accommodations were unchanged, ranging from 4½ to 4¾, but bankers' acceptances were cut an eighth. United States Government securities showed small price increases.

Foreign Bonds Active.

Foreign bonds continued to reflect buying. This was especially true of Government loans; the French and Belgian listings, as well as the Australians, Japanese and the Italy and German 7s received support.

Convertibles were affected only slightly by the strength of the stock market. American Telephone 4½s had a net rise of ⅜. Missouri Pacific 5½s moved up ½ but New Haven 6s were stationary and Atchison 5½s lost ¾. American I. G. Chemical 5½s recovered from their recent depression, finishing at 101, up ⅜.

Mixed price changes marked the rails. Baltimore & Ohio gold 4s, Rock Island general 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s, St. Louis & San Francisco prior lien 4s and New York Central debenture 4s of 1934 were firm. New Haven 3½s sagged a point, while Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s advanced to the same extent, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, series C, rallied 1½.

Utilities Are Quiet.

Utilities were quiet, although there was some buying of Columbian Gas & Electric 5s and Postal Telegraph 5s.

The dullness of the industrials was accompanied by easier quotations on Goodyear Tire 5s, Inland Steel 4½s, International Match 5s, U. S. Rubber 5s and Wilson Co. first 6s, which lost small fractions.

New bond offerings of the week rose to $122,041,000 from last week's total of $79,394,000. A year ago the volume was $137,574,250.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A broad revival of bullish activity, featuring a brisk demand for the public utilities, today lifted the volume of sales on the New York Curb Exchange above 1,000,000 shares for the first time this year. Net gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to nearly 8 points, with larger advances in a few ordinarily inactive specialties. A few soft spots were scattered throughout the list.

Electric Bond & Share was the leader of the public utility group, rising 7¾ points to 93⅞, and closing at the top. Wall street heard that the stock would be transferred to the big board in the near future. Southeastern Power & Light warrants jumped 14⅝ points and American & Foreign Power warrants, Allied Power & Light, American Superpower and Central States Electric were among the many issues to advance 1½ to 4 points. Merger reports, rumors of an overcrowded short interest and the postponement of the public utility hearings by the Federal Trade Commission were all mentioned as factors in the advance of the power and light stocks.

Oils also attracted a good following despite recent unfavorable trade developments. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania ran up more than 7 points, Indian Territorial 3½ and Illinois & Indiana Pipe Lines, Lion Oil and Solar Refining advanced a point or two.

The buying of the investment trust, trading and holding corporation shares was influenced by reports of a sharp appreciation in the market

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

HORSE SHOW DATES IN VIRGINIA SHIFTED

Fairfax Feature to Be Given in June Instead of at County Fair.

SCHOOL NURSE REPORTS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

At the meeting of the Virginia Horse Show Association at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, arrangements were made to hold the annual Fairfax County horse show on June 6 and 7 this year, instead of at the time of the annual county fair, in September. During previous years the horse show and horse racing was one of the most popular features of the county fair program.

It was stated by E. M. Palmer, president, and Robert E. Graham, secretary, of the Fairfax County Fair Association, that the popularity of the Fairfax show has increased to such an extent that it has taxed the stable accommodations of the fair ground to the limit. A large number of the stalls are needed in September for other live stock exhibits, and as money for a new building program is not available at present, it was decided that it would be best to hold the different events at separate times. The horse racing will still be held as usual in September, but the horse show will be held on the first Friday and Saturday of June. The feature of Saturday's show will be the pony classes for children.

Secretary Graham stated yesterday that the local association is considering plans to hold steeplechase and jumping races in the gentleman's class during the show.

A change in the schedule of the horse shows in this section of the State was made. The Washington show comes first, from May 14 to 17 inclusive; Fairfax, June 6 and 7, and Upperville, June 12 and 13; Culpeper, July 4 and 5; Berryville, first week in August; Marshall, last week in August; Warrenton, September 10 and 11, and Purcellville, September 17 and 18. The officers of the Virginia Horse Breeders Association which attended the meeting have decided to offer a special prize of an engraved medal and money at each of the fifteen shows for the best yearling colt, suitable to become a hunter. It was also stated that the American Polo Association has been considering offering a prize at each of the shows for a special class of ponies suitable for polo.

A pamphlet will be prepared at the end of the coming season which will list blue ribbon winners at all shows on the circuit.

The delegates reelected Manley W. Carter, of Orange, Va., president of the Virginia Horse Show Association; H. C. Warden, of Berryville, Va., vice president, and F. G. Gaskins, of Warrenton, secretary-treasurer.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at McLean, will serve an oyster and baked ham dinner in the fire engine house there tonight from 5 until 8 o'clock. Mrs. Earl Sanders, general chairman, will be assisted by a large committee in the preparation of the dinner.

A special committee of the school board, consisting of Trustees John T. DeBell (chairman), Vernon M. Lynch and John T. Haislip, will meet with County Superintendent of Schools Wilbur T. Woodson in the school board office this morning at 10 o'clock to interview applicants for the position of Fairfax County school mechanic. Applicants must present their qualifications in person to the committee. This is to be a full-time position. The school board is to furnish a work shop and truck. It is required that applicants be proficient in plumbing, carpentry and painting, as most of the work connected with the schools will be in small jobs involving knowledge of all three trades.

Miss Ida Jones, chairman of the local forget-me-not sale committee, announces that the sale of forget-me-nots for the benefit of disabled American veterans of the World War will begin today.

The new dog law this year contains a provision that tags purchased must be on the dog at all times, and if one is found without a tag the owner is liable to a fine of $2 for the first offense and $5 for the second and costs each time.

The semiannual report of Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamens, county health nurse, for the period from August 31 to December 31, 1929, shows that she has made 396 instructive and nursing visits, home visits to 18 infants under 1 year, 154 to preschool children, 141 to school children, has visited 26 tuberculosis patients and 55 general adults. The report shows also that 78 cases were referred to the family physician, 80 to dentists, 165 to clinic, 1 to hospital and 10 to a sanatorium, of which 3 were admitted.

In the fight for disease control, 131 throat cultures were taken, 247 smallpox vaccinations were made, 41 toxin-antitoxin immunization treatments were given, the sanitation of 35 schools was found to be safe and 8 unsafe, 32 homes were safe and 19 unsafe. She has made eight health talks to adults and conducted four health exhibits. She has spent 81 days conducting 13 dental clinics and found 449 new patients; two days in 4 tonsil and adenoid clinics and 17 new patients; two days in two tuberculosis clinics with 51 new patients. In the school and preschool clinics 569 children were found that measured up to the five-point standard. 1,536 children were found suffering from one or more easily corrected physical defects that impaired their efficiency, of which 511 have been corrected to date. Two children were found to be suffering with goiter.

In conducting the school clinics 56 schools were visited and 153 visits were made to the schools, while 199 class rooms visited 1,947 pupils were inspected by the nurse and doctor, 1,580 inspected by nurse and dentist. 33 were excluded for symptoms of communicable diseases, 81 talks were made in class rooms and 35 class rooms have taken up health programs.

Carrying the campaign to all sections of the county to better acquaint the citizens of the purpose and the value to be derived from the campaign which has been launched to fight tuberculosis in Arlington County, a special meeting was held in the James Monroe School house last night which was well attended, filling the auditorium to its capacity. Begining Monday, a penalty of 10 per cent will be added to all licenses issued on and after that day.

Eager to comply with the State law, the county treasurer's office at the courthouse had a busy day yesterday issuing the required dog tags for the year 1930.

While there will be no penalty added to the fee for the necessary tags, owners of dogs who have failed to comply with the law which has for the past 60 days been thoroughly advertised will subject themselves to arrest and a fine if dogs are found roaming the streets without the required tag.

Game Warden W. Harry Johnson states he does not propose to lose any time but will begin at once and check up all owners of dogs and see if the license has been paid.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA attended the monthly meeting of her literary guild, where the latest love book came under discussion. It is called, "Oh, Promise Me That You Will Never Tell," and purports to contain love letters exchanged between an American society girl and a youthful British peer, the Earl of Macgunigle, or something like that.

"What was it like?" I asked her, as she came home all enthused.

"They were the loveliest 'pash' notes," she said, and the Earl of Macgunigle coined a new sweetheart phrase."

"He did? What was it?"

"Love-puff!" she exclaimed. "Isn't it divine?"

"Love-puff!"

Luella's eyes danced.

"Yes!" she breathed. "Love-puff!"

* * * *

AS I gather it, the Earl of Macgunigle, in writing to his ladylove, called her a love-puff. All other endearing phrases and terms failed him.

"It took a foreigner to think of that," said Luella, "you'd find no American capable of such expression."

For once I was proud of our American boys.

"Love-puff! A full-grown man called a lady a love-puff, eh? What did the lady do?" I asked Luella. "Did she hit him with anything, or shoot him, or just let it go at that?"

Luella grew angry. "You're so unromantic," she snapped. "You don't see the beauty of all this."

* * * *

PERHAPS not; my sense of romance dulled.

"If you'd only read more good books, you'd be better off," she told me. "All you do is look at the funny papers. They're not educational."

She's right there, and my education, in this light, has been sadly neglected. So I sat in, while Leulla was busy with other things, brushing up on romance. At dinner, I won her over.

"Sweetie-pie," I whispered, "please pass the cream."

She looked at me in astonishment.

"You dear boy," she breathed, leaning over the table, "of course I'll pass the cream."

"And now, my love-eclair——"

"Love-eclair?"

"You know what I mean, lovey-dove."

She tittered.

"Oh," she sighed, "isn't it great to be in love?"

"Sweet-swan, it makes the world go 'round." I mused, and rose to kiss her hand.

Some day I must write her a series of letters, addressed to Love-dumpling. They may be published as "pash notes."

CRABTREE IS INSANE, RELATIVES DECLARE

Members of Family Testify for Kinsman Accused in Romney Slaying.

PECULIAR WAYS CITED

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., Jan. 31.—The family skeleton of the Crabtree family was paraded here today in defense of Walter Crabtree, 36, who is trying to establish his claim to insanity as his defense against the charge of killing three men here December 18, Justice of the Peace H. Carter Inskeep, Jailer Ben B. Miller and Edward Wolford. He is specifically on trial for the Inskeep slaying.

The parents of the man, Dudley Crabtree, sr., and Mrs. Edith Crabtree; two sisters, Mrs. Clara Alsip end Mrs. Gilbert Sanders; two brothers, Dudley, jr., and Raymond, and two brothers-in-law, Gilbert Sanders and George Aslip, with three friends, Paul Jackson, Peyton Reynolds and Jacob Gano, testified as the defense opened its insanity plea, all submitting a story which showed Walter Crabtree first as a delinquent boy, then later as a grown up, terrorizing the entire community with his fists, guns and knives.

Crabtree's mother was the principal and first witness to testify in support of his defense under temporary insanity. She recited a chain of irregularities of conduct in youth and manhood, declared her own mother (Crabtree's grandmother) was mentally irregular for eight years before her death, and Mrs. Crabtree was ready to go into the mental records of other blood relatives when Judge Hughes sustained a State objection halting the testimony.

At birth he lacked the normal soft spot in the head, she said.

The morning of the slayings she was awakened by the sound of a shot. Later her son came in and told her he had killed four men. She discounted the story, as she had done on previous occasions, and he invited her to go see for herself When she tried to take his gun away he threatened. He left the house later and returned again, saying he had killed another. She heard him say he was going to get Justice Inskeep and former Sheriff Robert Ruckman. He also told her he had killed Joseph Boden, a railroader. His actions on the morning of the slaying were maniacal, she said.

The defense expects to occupy all of Saturday with testimony. Alienists will be offered by both sides and the State will rebut the defense testimony as to the boy's mentality.

SHUT BANK MAY PAY OFF IN TWO WEEKS

Del Ray Depositors Are Expected to Get Full Amounts Due.

TWO QUIT COUNCIL RACE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Bank of Del Ray, the doors of which were closed January 21 for an audit, following which H. Clay Brittle, cashier, was arrested and charged with misappropriation of more than $60,000 of the bank's funds, expects to pay off its depositors, of whom there are approximately 980, within the next two weeks, according to a statement issued yesterday by Nelson T. Snyder, president of the bank.

The audit has not yet been completed, according to Mr. Snyder, but is nearing a close, and it is expected that all depositors will be paid in full. A number of them have been reported to be seriously embarrassed by the temporary closing of the bank.

Brittle will be given a preliminary hearing in police court February 6. He is at liberty on a bond of $25,000, furnished by George Herring, R. N. Rust and F. L. Holt.

Two of the nine persons who had announced their candidacy for the city council, in which there will be three vacancies owing to the expiration of the terms of three councilmen, have withdrawn from the race. Howard T. Colvin, labor leader, and Luther H. Dudley, vice president and cashier of the Alexandria National Bank, are the ones who have withdrawn, leaving Mrs. Naomi P. Craver, Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, Emmett C. Davidson, Richard B. Washington, Edmund F. Ticer, incumbent; Arthur Herbert and Clyde C. Lamond still in the field. The time limit for filing notice of candidacy expired at midnight Wednesday.

Several of the candidates have already started campaigns, and the race for the three positions, in the Democratic primary of April 1, promises to be an exciting one.

Dr. T. Marshall Jones, city coroner, following an inquest over Alonzo Crouch, who died at the Alexandria Hospital January 24 as the result of being struck by an automobile driven by Martin J. Manning, rendered a verdict of accidental death yesterday.

The accident occurred on Mount Vernon avenue near Hume Spring on January 22. According to the testimony of Mrs. Crouch, wife of the dead man, she and her husband were walking north near Hume, on Mount Vernon avenue. Owing to the slippery state of the road, they were walking between a furrow of snow and ice and the sidewalk, she holding to her husband's arm to keep from falling. Manning testified that he did not observe the couple until he was within 10 or 12 feet of them, and he was driving between 18 and 20 miles an hour; that his headlights were burning, and that he came to a stop within approximately the length of his car, having done everything possible to prevent the accident. Crouch, he said, appeared to walk toward the road, and was struck by the fender of the car. Crouch was able to walk immediately after being struck, and was taken to the hospital by Manning.

Dr. M. D. Delaney, who attended Crouch, stated that the man died of a cerebral hemorrhage, and that an X-ray photograph failed to disclose a fracture of the skull.

A force of city employes was engaged yesterday in removing the snow from the streets, as authorized by the city council Thursday, when $999 was appropriated for that purpose. The thaw yesterday greatly aided the workmen in their task. The snow was also removed from many roofs.

Mrs. Grace Chauncey Paff, wife of Frederick J. Paff, former mayor of Alexandria, died Thursday at her home, 919 Cameron street, death being due to pneumonia. A week ago, while visiting in Washington, she complained of a chill, and went under a physician's care immediately on her return home. Pneumonia developed, and for several days little hope had been held out for her recovery.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Paff is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Edward C. Gibbs, Mrs. Thomas W. McKnew, and Mrs. Henry J. Hough. For many years she had been active in charity work, being one of the ward workers of the Alexandria Associated Charities. She was also a past worthy matron of Martha Washington Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. Ernest M. Delaney, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and interment will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Young Mother Dies In Shotgun Mishap

Farmer's Wife Killed as She Takes Weapon From Her Child.

Special to The Washington Post.

La Plata, Md., Jan. 31.—Funeral services for Mrs. Emile B. Owskoinez, a 25-year-old mother of four children, who was accidentally shot to death at her home here Wednesday, when she attempted to take a shotgun away from her 5-year-old son, were held today at Holy Ghost Catholic Church, Issue, Md.

Mrs. Owskoinez, who was the wife of Frank Owskoinez, La Plata farmer, was preparing the evening meal Wednesday, with her four children playing about her in the kitchen, when the tragedy occurred. A shotgun, standing in a corner where Mr. Owskoinez had left it following a hunting trip, attracted the attention of the eldest child and when his mother took it from him it was discharged, the shot striking her in the chest. She died almost instantly.

Justice of the Peace Walter Thompson held a coroner's inquest Thursday, and a verdict of accidental death was reached. The 5-year-old boy, who ran to a barn half a mile away to tell his father of the accident, was called to the stand at the inquest, but was unable to explain how the gun was discharged.

FOUR DIE IN FAMILY OF RARE PNEUMONIA

Doctors Discover Extraordinarily Fatal Form of Disease in Virginia Town.

QUARANTINE IS ORDERED

Bristol, Va., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The mystery surrounding the deaths within three weeks of four members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Rector, at Clinchburg, Va., was cleared today with the announcement by doctors that the cause was a rare form of pneumonia accompanied by blood poisoning.

After conducting tests since last Saturday, doctirs, in a statement issued this afternoon, said the disease was caused by bacillus mucosus capsulatus, also known as Friedlander's bacillus. The tests were conducted by Drs. J. B. McKee, D. L. Kinsolving, Lee Hawley, F. H. Smith and R. A. Morrison.

The statement said the bacillus in question was one of the rather uncommon causes of pneumonia.

"Pneumonia so caused is unusually fatal," the statement said, "death often occurring in the first day or two of illness. It is recognized also by medical authorities that this organism is responsible at times for sepicemia (blood poisoning) and that this septicemia is almost uniformly and rapidly fatal. The frequency of this type of disease varied from 4 per 1,000 to 80 per 1,000."

An abundant growth of the germ was obtained in pure culture in one case from every organ from which material was obtained, it was said, and germs obtained, cultured and injected into rabbits and white rats produced identical disease in the case of the rats and similar in the rabbits to that of the child from whom the germs were obtained. The germs recovered from these animals, the doctors said were identical with those of the child.

"The question of probability of further cases," the doctors said, "is more difficult to answer. * * * Congregating in closed spaces, and public gatherings generally, had best be avoided until a full two weeks from January 26 has elapsed."

It was stated that the Rector family will remain under quarantine until February 9, and that school will not reopen until that date.

The victims were Martha Mae and Emma Gay Rector, 5-year-old twins who died January 5, after being ill twelve hours; Miss Bessie Patrick, 31, aunt of the two children, who died January 22, after a twelve-hour illness extraordinarily similar to that which claimed the lives of the children, and Mary Helen Rector, 2, who died January 24 from apparently the same illness.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Virginia's gardens of romance, about which cluster associations of many important historic events, will be opened to the public this spring for one week from April 28 to May 3, it was announced here tonight by Mrs. Thomas S. Wheelwright, of Richmond, a member of the Garden Clubs of Virginia.

More than 100 of the gardens, many of them still nurturing plants that grew in the days of Washington and Jefferson, may be visited during the six days designated. Some of them are deep, shady retreats bounded by shrubs and dense hedges, while others abound in brilliant flowers of many hues.

How long some of them have been in existence nobody knows. On the list of those which will be opened appear the names of Brandon, Castle Hill, Tuckahoe, Westover and many others closely associated with early colonial history.

Lafayette Visited Gardens.

No changes have been made in many since they were first laid out. The four deep terraces of Castle Hill lie as they were marked by Dr. Thomas Walker, major and quartermaster of colonial forces in Virginia, and a member of the House of Burgesses and the committee of safety. In the garden at Castle Hill are said to have walked many famous men—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and even Lafayette, who is said to have visited there when he was last in America.

The list of gardens to be opened, as announced by Mrs. Wheelwright, is as follows:

Vicinity of Alexandria, Christ Church, Gadsby's Tavern, Carlisle House, Pohick Church, Gunston Hall, Rippon Lodge, Wellington.

Fredericksburg—Rising Sun Tavern, Mary Washington House, Hugh Mercer's Apothecary Shop, Monroe's Law Office, Federal Hill, Kenmore, Town of Falmouth.
